AN OLD ROGUE.

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY H. A. DARLEY.

Only a poor old rogue am I,
Ladies fair and bright-eyed boy—
A rogue of twoscore years and nine,
Who seldom knows the laugh of joy.
Well may you stare at my ragged dress—
It has covered this weary, decrepit frame
For many long and tedious months—
Than clothes, more like a shroud of shame.

What made me a rogue? The question's hard
When put to me in such a way:
Consult the papers—you will find
The answer therein day by day.
The struggle of poverty with wealth,
Of long-nursed virtue with yellow gold;
A loving wife—oh, the words are hard!—
To satiate vanity her honor sold.

'Twas only a step down the steep of crime,
To advance was easy, retreat far worse;
Not comprehending the bitter end
Till she felt the cold world's stinging curse.
Don't mind these tears—they ease my heart,
And make me younger by many years,
My step slate—what ails the lad?
Startled, p'raps, at my foolish tears.

His golden hair and hazel eyes
Recall to memory's blank a form
Whose artless, fragile frame could not
Battle with life's fitful storm.
Can I remember the time he died?
Can you forget a loved one gone?
No? Then how can you expect of me
To lose an offspring and not mourn!

My wife? Ah, yes; of her you'd know—
At one time she was fair to see;
But the gold of a bold, despicable wretch
Consigned her soul to misery.
She'd leave her husband and her child
To carry on her sinful ways;
And soon her virtue was drowned in vice—
Forgotten were her childhood days.

One night—oh, God! I see her now—
Her beautiful face distorted with drink—
She staggered to embrace her boy:
But he, in fear, from her did shrink.
I watched her through the dreary night,
And she, anon, in her drunken sleep,
Would eject from her portals of ruby tint
Blasphemous curses loud and deep.

A fallen, degraded daughter of Eve,
But my eyes were blinded to her acts;
And, though my heart wept tears of blood,
My doubts could not dispute the facts.
At last, exhausted by my vigil,
Calmly I sank into gentle sleep;
But was soon awakened by ominous screams,
That pierced my aching heart's core deep.

My wife she was not at my side,
But I heard a sound from an upper room—
A sound that filled my soul with fear,
And pictured visions in the gloom.
I rushed aloft, from where the shrieks
In anguish came both loud and shrill,
And saw my darling boy in blood;
But his little heart was beating still.

Tortured with doubts and fears, I knelt
Beside the form I cherished dear,
And placed my ear to his trembling lips,
That I the awful tale could hear.
His beautiful eyes were frightfully mashed,
His round, sweet face was black and blue,
While an awful expression resting thereon
Pierced my sad heart through and through.

"Why did mamma play so rough?"
The little voice unto me said;
"She raised a chair and knocked me down,
While I begged her not to strike me dead.
And then she stared at me so wild,
While fire flashed from out her eyes;
And then she struck your boy again,
And bleeding at her feet he lies.

"And then she whispered: 'Willie, wait,
I'll join you in a moment more,
And then together, arm in arm,
We'll dwell with angels evermore.'
But, papa, hear that music sweet,
Oh! kiss me, ere your boy is dead;
I'm going—papa—mamma—sing—
His soul to higher spheres had fled.

A maniac they found my wife,
Strong contrast to the gentle heart
Who but a short eight years before
Vowed only death should us e'er part.
My life thereafter was a blank—
A torn page from the book of life,
Blotted by a once fair being
Whom I had cherished as a wife.

But 'tis only the way of an unfeeling world;
"Look out for number one" 's the cry,
And may the devil catch all he can—
Or only such a wretch as I.
Am I going? Yes. A ten-dollar bill!
God bless you, lady, for the gift.
And He above will surely repay
For giving a rogue like me the lift.

Thank you, ladies, and you, my lad,
But I can walk to the nearest town;
For a rogue like me, should I be seen
With you, would incite many a frown.
I assure you I am able to tramp;
Although I'm old, my limbs are strong.
God bless you all, ladies, once again,
For righting an OLD ROGUE in the wrong!

THE BROKEN RING.

A LONDON STORY.

BY JOHN LATEY, JR.

CHAPTER XIII.

A REHEARSAL AT THE THESPIAN THEATRE ROYAL.

The pretty "Sleep-Walker" virtually stepped from the roof of her stage-dwelling at the Northgate Theatre to the boards of that favorite London playhouse, the Thespian Theatre Royal.

For among the audience whom the debutante delighted by her beauty, chic, and freshness, was that shrewd man of business, the manager of the Thespian Theatre Royal; and no sooner was the somnambulistic heroine borne behind the back scenes, than he ushered her and happily restored to her lover's arms, as the curtain fell amidst a tempest of applause, than the manager made his way behind the scenes, obtained an introduction to the winsome actress, and secured her services, at a handsome salary, for the opening ensuing Autumn season at the Thespian Theatre Royal, after duly recompensing his Norgate confrere for the loss of so valuable an addition to his company.

Miss Grace Grenville! This is the name Bessie has now bestowed upon her by the outlaw whom she looks upon as her father, lest her own name might lead to her discovery and rob him of the sole source of income left him. This is the new name the readers of The Era and London playgoers soon became familiar with, for it is paragraphed and billed about town with true managerial skill.

In the theatrical game hearts are often cast trumps. So, with Grace as trump card, Mr. Bluff, who wants a good sentimental, sensational melodrama to win the rub of the season. Nothing easier! Is not Mr. Willinghand dramatic author to the Thespian Theatre Royal? Playgoers are tired of the series of dramas he has produced from the pages of the British Novelist. Let Mr. Willinghand try his hand at a fresh adaptation of "Rigoletto," clothe his puppets in English garb, and put in a fresh sensation in lieu of the repulsively tragic ending of the opera. Mr. Bluff's hints were at once acted upon. The melodrama of is the result. The sensation scene is one after Mr. Bluff's own heart, and he rubs his hands with glee as he already hears, in fancy, the gold chinking into his treasury.

"THE NARROW ESCAPE"

Still brighter grows Mr. Bluff when he finds Grace entering into the rehearsals with all her heart, and not flinching even at the daring flight she has to make in the mountain-torrent scene.

Not a very high ideal had Grace formed of the beauty of "behind the scenes." The confidences of Lottie revealed to her that the bare reality was as uninviting as it could be. Disenchanted by her short experience of the Norgate stage of any fairy-land glamour that may have lurked in her, Grace was completely disillusioned of the faintest romantic notions lingering in her brain when introduced to the whitewashed walls of the Thespian Theatre Royal, its wings so dirty and dingy, and its "flies" so cobwebby, and its company such common, every-day mortals.

Depressing actuality, however, has gone clean out of Grace's mind. It is the night of the first dress rehearsal. She is escorted by Will to the stage-door, punctual to the following "call," announced on a leaf of note-paper stuck on the wall of the passage leading to the stage-door:

"THE NARROW ESCAPE."
DRESS REHEARSAL FRIDAY NIGHT,
SEVEN O'CLOCK.
J. BLUFF.

The Thespian Theatre Royal presents a strange spectacle as Mrs. Bluff—the plump manageress—marshals the characters of the crowded opening scene upon the stage.

A ghastly brown-holland shroud is spread over the seats of the dark "auditorium" from pit to amphitheatre stalls. The sole occupants of seats are two young men in the orchestra stalls. These are Will Truman and Frank Rushton, who, strangely enough, again find themselves unpremeditatedly sitting together—Will being accorded the open sesame to the theatre as Grace's trusted guardian, Frank (pledged to secrecy now by De Bathe) being there through the favor of Mr. Bluff, whom he has met at the social board of the Covent Club. Frank and Will readily exchange friendly greetings; but Will cannot help feeling a sinking of his brave heart at the fancied look of brightness that leaps into Grace's smiling face at recognition of Frank; while Frank, yielding unreservedly to the spell which the fascinating brown eyes of Grace have held over him ever since his fickle fancy was struck by her simpled face at Willow Lodge, lets his charming Cousin Amy slip from his mind, and gives himself up, with a full fling characteristic of him, to the enjoyment of the light-hearted acting of Grace, and to penning no end of mental "puffs" of her genius for The Morning Newsman.

The footlights and winglights alone illuminate the thronged stage—thronged with gayly-dressed "walking ladies," and with "walking gentlemen" in evening dress, to represent an English ball.

To one remarkably buxom "walking lady," engaged in one of those quadrilles which so exactly represent the staid quadrille of Society upon the stage, Mrs. Bluff (standing "L. C.," with her arms akimbo, near Mr. Willinghand and her admiring husband), calls out sharply:

"Mrs. Jones! Do keep that right shoulder down! There! you've shot your left up now! My good woman, you have got finely-moulded shoulders; I acknowledge it; but the stalls will admire them quite as much if you keep them straight. That's better!"

The band-leader forms his own orchestra. He is seated "L." at a piano, on which he rattles off some lively dance music. Close by him is the prompter, at a table, ready to give the cue at a moment's notice. Out of sight, but not less vigilant, are the machinists, alert to shift the scenery, which is being scanned for the last time by the scene-painter.

"Miss Leery Willis! Do remember your precious understandings are not now in tights and smalls; or if they are, that a silk skirt hides your shapely limbs! Do drop your burlesque swagger and try to walk through your part like a lady, there's a good girl!"

"And, Mr. Finch! Pray bear in mind that this is not the North Woolwich Gardens, and that a gentleman in a Belgravian ball-room does not dance with his nose thrust into his partner's cheek!"

Which last protest is elicited from Mrs. Bluff by a spasm of hilarity which seized Mr. Finch and induced him to indulge in (as he vainly thought) an unobserved impromptu waltz with Mrs. Jones.

But these recalcitrant members serve only as foils to the leading characters of Sir Richard Winkton's ball. They may move through the mock festivities with stiffness, as unlike the ease of polite society as possible. Still there are many comely figures among them; and were a tithe of the enormous sums lavished upon foreign singers but devoted to the encouragement of the drama, why, Mr. Bluff would be the first to elevate the tone of his "supers."

Carefully, though, Mrs. Bluff has every movement and every word of this opening scene rehearsed. Will and Frank impatiently note all the "stage-business," impatiently note the soliloquy wherein Sir Richard Winkton lets the audience into the secret of his passion for a humble maiden on his estate, impatiently note his rude rebuffs of scheming match-makers, each anxious to secure him for her daughter.

The longed-for moment comes at last, and they are now fully interested. The old, old story of a maiden loved, purely or impurely, as the case may be, by one far above her in station, is the kernel of "The Narrow Escape."

They see Grace, as the heroine, open the practicable door of her father's cottage; look furtively round, in token that she is on a secret errand; trip up to the wicket-gate, and, with hand shading her eyes, peer into the wings for her expected lover.

Shrouded as the house is in funereal gloom, Grace draws no inspiration from the moving sight of a sea of upturned faces, which may unconsciously stimulate her on the morrow, while Will and Frank, almost veiled by the brown-holland wrapper, can scarcely be seen across the glare of the footlights.

Innate tact and power of vivid impersonation alone, therefore, enable Grace to string up her nerves, even at rehearsal, to play the part well; and the charming naturalness and fresh spontaneity of her acting are rewarded by encouraging remarks from Mrs. Bluff, while her earnestness proves so catching that Sir Richard Winkton is induced to throw aside the mumbling voice and careless gestures peculiar to ordinary rehearsals, and incited to make love with the fervor and manly vigor which have won him such warm smiles from the boxes on many a first-night.

The interest of Will and Frank culminates, however, in act II, the sensation act. There is a lover's meeting in Moss Hollow—a tree-shaded dell. It is the rendezvous which is to decide Grace's fate, for she has been led to believe that Sir Richard Winkton will declare his love for her.

They meet with the rapture that lovers only feel. With all her heart the village maiden implicitly trusts her wooer. With all her soul trembling to her lips, and with ears on fire, she listens for the manly words that may ask her to be his true wife.

With a shudder and a shriek she rushes away as she hears the well-loved voice ask her in seductive tones to be not his wife, but his mistress. The Moss Hollow scene rolls up, revealing a mountain torrent, crossed by a wooden bridge that recedes from precipice to precipice, which almost reaches the "flies." Real water was added to the vividness of the splashing waterfall. Grace fleeing in wild despair from her faithless lover, is seen rushing across the bridge, hastening "anywhere, anywhere, out of the world."

She reaches the opposite precipice, the figure of Sir Richard is seen about to step on the bridge in equally wild pursuit. Too late! He is just in time to be eye-witness to a terrible scene, of which he is the base cause.

A tree projects over the brink of the precipice. The brink is gained by Grace. Fearlessly she throws herself off; but her uplifted hands catch in the strong overhanging branch.

Instinctively the hands clasp firm hold. The bough bends beneath her weight, and sways towards the dashing torrent, into which it threatens to precipitate Grace, when it swings back, and, still descending gradually, lays her on the rocks; but the fate of Grace is left uncertain, for the act-drop falls and veils the sensation scene from sight.

CHAPTER XIV.

AN EARLY MORNING MEETING IN ROTTEN-ROW.

The closing scenes of "The Narrow Escape"—with the rescue of Grace by Sir Richard, and his partial murder by the revengeful father of Grace, and the subsequent true betrothal of the conscience-stricken baronet and the lowly maiden, to secure the happy ending essential to success on the stage—became the enthusiastically hailed by Frank Rushton's dreams, that it needed his customary early "dip" in the Serpentine, on the morning following the rehearsal, to clear his brain thoroughly.

What a beautiful breath, indeed, does the morn pour forth—even in a London park! While London, bathed in sleep, is enervatingly resting for the fatigues of the coming day, scores of early risers hie to Hyde Park for a bracing bath in Father Thames's great bathing-lake.

Driven to an economical bath by his financial collapse, Frank enters with keen zest into his healthy "constitutional."

Stepping lightly over the grassy turf, a genial glow spread over his lithe and active frame. It is a pleasure simply to breathe the pure, cool, renovating morning air, to hear the gladsome twittering and musical warbling of the light-hearted songsters high up in their dew-bespangled orchestra, and to glance at the bright, clear sky overhead.

Across the bridge, at an accelerated pace and with a leaping pulse, for to the left spreads out the wide stretch of water, through which strong swimmers are already planning their way, quite secure under the vigilant eyes of the Royal Humane Society's boatmen.

Over the railings, leaps Frank, runs down the slope, and has, in the twinkling of an eye, "peeled" under "The Old Elm Tree," the trysting-place of the Serpentine Swimming Club, skipped up the diving-plank, and has plunged head-foremost for his morning swim. Through him rushes the delightful thrill of the first shock with the exhilarating water! More healthily through his veins courses his life-blood as he cleaves his way lustily along, and thoroughly invigorates his system by a good, clipping spin. And when, on the safe south bank again, he indulges in an irrepressible spurt on foot to dry himself, his buoyancy of mind and body is proof positive of the restoring qualities of the most beneficial of water sports.

Clad once more in the garments of conventionality, it is with a healthy feeling of unrestrainable pleasure that Frank marches eastward by the side of the loosely-graveled roadway of Rotten Row.

A few grooms exercising their masters' horses, a ruddy-faced country squire with his youthful son and daughter—these are all the equestrians now visible in the famous Row, to be crowded in the afternoon with the fairest horsewomen of the kingdom, and the steadiest and cinnamon of esquires that ever sat a saddle. Who is this fair horsewoman, though, cantering towards Frank?

No second glance is needed on either side. In Frank's eyes there can be no mistaking the lissom grace of that slender rider, or the peach-like color of that blonde Diana. It can be no other than his Cousin Amy. In Amy's eyes there can be no mistaking the springy step of the athletic pedestrian for anybody but Frank.

As the jet-black mare is reined up close to the rails, Frank, stopping also, collectedly exchanges greetings with Amy, patting the neck of her steed, while her groom remains with tact some distance down the Row.

The chat is not prolonged. It is light and flippant on Frank's part. Not having heard from her since the night of the ball, when he disclosed to her the loss of his fortune, Frank fancies Amy has chosen her worldly path, and intends to wed Lord Calfut for his money-bags. There is a half protest in Amy's voice against the cool tone adopted by Frank.

"Ah, Frank! You'll hear of me in a way that will surprise you soon!" exclaims his fair cousin reproachfully, as she reached down her gauntleted hand for a farewell shake. "Good-morning!"

But Frank smiles knowingly to himself when, having echoed the "Good-morning!" he turns on his heel and proceeds eastward with the reflection that he will not be surprised in the least at the news, for he fully expects it will be the announcement in The Morning Post of the conclusion of a "matrimonial alliance" between Lord Calfut and Miss Amy Forrester.

CHAPTER XV.

A LIFE IN JEOPARDY.

Will Truman's first visit on the morning after the rehearsal is a visit of charity. Intrusted by the secretary of the Reform League with a small sum for the relief of a poor mason confined to his bed from a cracked skull—said cracked skull the handiwork of the preservers of the peace at the Hyde Park escalade—Will adds a mite of his own; and is received by the sick man and his wife, in their humble room at the top floor of a tumble-down tenement in a squalid Holborn court.

Will's cheery voice is the one sympathetic voice they have heard since the poor man's illness; so both husband and wife do their best to retain their visitor by never allowing the conversation to flag. It is a wonder that so shaky a dwelling should keep together a single day. With the fall of a beam that shored up the back of the house, it must be simply a matter of time when the time-beaten old edifice should collapse.

The moment has come! A sound as of the creaking of timbers. A shake and a rumble! In an instant the wall falls out, the flooring gives way, and Will, with the poor recipients of his relief, falls down, down—dizzied with the screams of human beings and with the rushing of rafters, plaster and bricks, and the crashing of beams.

In a minute the entire back of the house, from garret to basement, is laid bare, the front rooms alone being left intact, and nought to be seen besides but the naked party walls. A small Dutch clock and a canary in a little cage alone stand unhurt in a nook in the wall of the top-floor back, in which a few seconds ago Will was infusing some of his own health-ful spirit into the souls of a sorrowful couple, who may, alas! now lie crushed and life-less, with Will, in the heap of rubbish below.

But, happily, wherever there are "English hearts and English hands," there are to be found brave and fearless men, who will rush to the rescue, careless of their own lives in their manly efforts to save the lives of others in peril.

So the terror-strickened occupants of the front room, alarmed by the fearful cracking of the rotten wood supports, had no sooner rushed down-stairs and out into the court in a panic, than news of the calamity spread from mouth to mouth, and this difficulty occurred—plenty of willing hands, but how to utilise them? First in intelligence and promptness of action, the nearest policeman on duty quickly organizes a forlorn hope from the cluster of navvies who are employed close by.

They gain access to the dusty back-yard through the opposite house. Their brawny arms are bared, and spades are wielded like spoons, so earnest are these lion-hearted men in their humane work. Seconds are years now, for with each second a fellow-creature may breathe his last, stifled in that fell grave of debris!

Heavy drops of sweat fall from their wet brows, their swarthy faces and breasts and bronzed arms are wet with perspiration. They yet dig like men. Their heap of rubbish grows in bulk, and the heap they are at work on decreases in size every instant.

Thank God! There rises a moan. But in their zeal they ply spade and pickaxe alike with a force that may be murderous!

This fearful oversight is at once detected by the man for the juncture. He is simply a reporter—Frank, in fact, from the neighboring Morning Newsman office—but his higher intelligence perceived, directly he arrived, that this work of humanity must proceed without the pickaxes.

The possibly fatal axes are thrown aside directly the mistake is pointed out. The gallant fellows labor away untiringly—nay, with redoubled assiduity. Those who have not spades toil lustily with their naked hands.

The moan sounds nearer! How their gallant hearts leap with hope! They have now dug down to some thick beams, which obstruct further progress. There's a chance that some one may be buried alive underneath these logs. Not the faintest cry now reaches their anxious ears.

A larger spadeful than usual is thrown aside, and Frank springs forward to caution the herculean digger, for his sharp eyes have caught sight of a human hand projecting from the debris. The dust-white hand is not quite cold!

All the spades are thrown away for the moment, and a score of active hands are carefully, lovingly clearing away the plaster and bricks, in fierce haste to let in some fresh air to their stricken fellow-man. The arm is soon exposed, but it is limp and seemingly lifeless.

It is now a fight against death. Powerful arms lift the thick beams from the buried figure—and discover that the timber had miraculously fallen so as to protect the unfortunate man's body from being crushed to death. If the now unconscious sufferer has not been smothered, there is yet hope that his life, at least, may be saved.

As the faint hope flashes across Frank's brain, he stoops down, and tenderly turning the wan face to the light, exclaims, with horror:

"Merciful heavens! Will Truman!"

CHAPTER XVI.

ANGELS OF MERCY.

"Ah, Frank! You'll hear of me in a way that will surprise you, very soon!"

Little thought Miss Amy Forrester, the peerless beauty of the season, when she bade good-bye in these words to Frank Rushton, Esq., of Rotten Row, that her prediction would be within an ace of realization that very day.

Like many a noble lady in those days, fired by the soul-stirring example of Florence Nightingale or Catharine Marsh, Amy has become a volunteer Sister of Mercy—a nurse in that noble Palace of Refuge which, a true Hospice of St. Bernard, towers grandly above the toiling and moiling pilgrims of the city, at once a monument of London's great charity and London's great suffering.

Light, roomy, airy and faultlessly clean, the accident-wards of this city Hospice of St. Bernard are marvels of comfort and brightness.

Glance at the men's ward, to which Amy has been attached, in company with one of the gentle regular Sisters. With a most appetizing hissing and spluttering of tid-bits, and wafting in a most savory aroma of cooking viands (artfully introduced, maybe, to hasten recovery), Amy emerges, tray in hand, from the cheeriest kitchen that ever shone with lustrous pewter and polished grates. Her riding-habit is changed for a plain black-stuff dress, with a simple white collar encircling her ivory neck; and her gleaming, golden hair is arranged with neat simplicity.

Who can tell the depth of gratefulness felt by the poor sufferers as this veritable Angel of Mercy glides noiselessly past the long lines of low beds on each side of the ward?

Under the brown coverlet here lies a wee pale infant, so still, and so wistful with his large staring eyes, that one has a choking sensation and feels a dimming of the eyes at the thought of what pain the little mite of humanity must have endured with his broken leg, and at the thought of how painful will be his lame progress in the race of life should he rise from the valley of the shadow of death!

Well may the blue and white striped bed-curtains veil the next figure! His face and body are disfigured beyond recognition. His writhing and moaning have ceased. The soft and gentle ministrations of the surgeon and Sister have assuaged the anguish of the patient, struck down by a van and maimed for life.

Here a wan, gray old man smiles at Amy, as he lifts himself into a sitting posture, for he is plainly grateful for the favor of the dainty to come, and he has surely earned his convalescence by the months upon months of wearisome bed-life that followed his fall from the scaffolding of a new house.

From yon heap of bedclothes comes a distressing cough, suspiciously like a death-rattle. To this poor youth Amy hastens with a cool, refreshing drink. As she regains the kitchen the door of the ward opens, and she hears a voice that sends her heart beating tumultuously, as only a loved voice could send it beating.

"THE BROKEN RING."—REHEARSING A SENSATION SCENE.

"Steady! Be careful!" exclaims this voice.

Looking round, Amy sees Frank Rushton and the stalwart young leadle of the hospital carrying in between them the limp, unconscious figure of a young man, his flesh and hair and clothes covered with white dust.

No need, however, to exhort the young attendant of St. Bernard to carefulness. With a merciful promptness and the kindest tenderness withal, he supports Will, aided by Frank, and lay the head unaided by Frank, and lays the head unaided by Frank, and lays the head unaided by Frank, and lays

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ Letters seeking information replied to only through this department; no answers by mail.

W. H. P.—In such answers we never stated that the copyright law required a written or printed copy to be filed. Our reasons for giving that advice is as follows: First. There are many conflicting legal decisions as to what constitutes the "publication" of a drama. The copyright law is silent upon the subject. Second. You can copyright only original matter or original dramatization of the works of others. You cannot copyright the title of a drama which has previously been used for a novel, but in reality you copyright your arrangement in dramatic form of the ideas contained in the novel. There may be numerous dramatizations of the same novel, and all can be protected so long as they materially differ in the method of treating the subject. Third. Many persons send a title page, accompanied by the required fee, to the Librarian of Congress, and think that sufficient. They never touch pen to paper to write a drama, have no skill for so doing; and when a drama written by a competent and well-known author is announced under the same title for sale or performance, they step in and threaten legal proceedings. In the brief space at our command we have endeavored to point out a few of the chief difficulties to be overcome. Now for the application of our advice. If a person is about to write an original drama with an original title, he naturally desires that title protected, and therefore sends evidence that it is immediately copyrighted. He then writes his drama, and when completed, if he is, once sends a written or printed copy to the Librarian of Congress, there to perfect evidence. We could advise that he has acted in good faith, and in the event of legal proceedings he becomes into court "with clean hands," which will be a great way in securing him justice. He does not necessarily need the Librarian of Congress to receive such copies, but we take it for granted that there would be no objection on his part.

E. K. H.—1. The playing of P. Allison in the Mutual nine on Aug. 7, was an open and willful violation of the rules, and the penalty is, first, the forfeiture of the game to the Philadelphia by 9 to 0, and the throwing out of the game as a won game in the championship series. 2. We know of none having been officially engaged, except Addy, who has joined the Boston Club. 3. No. 4. The Mutual nine for 1869 were C. Mills, Wolters, E. Mills, Flasby, Swandell, Devyr, Hatfield, Eggler and McMahon.

IGNORAMUS, Providence.—1. Should you, at cassino, combine an ace and a deuce upon the board with a tray from your hand, and call it "six," your antagonist could of course build upon it. 2. As the term is unknown to the game, we fancied that you might have had some special meaning in using it.

WESTFIELD AND HYANNIS.—The passage from Boston, Mass., to Queenstown has been made in 6 days, 21½ hours, by the steamer Java, which is the fastest trip of which we have any record between the two countries. The Java were also kept for difference in time and stopped at Halifax, N. S.—six hours.

INSURANCE.—1. A safe-deposit company is a company which undertakes the safe-keeping of valuables. 2. Probably it would be better to wait until you have saved a little money. 3. It depends upon what kind of a climate you would like to live in, and upon what you can afford to pay.

COMMITTEE, Memphis.—As it is entirely a matter of taste, we cannot undertake to recommend a name; but, perhaps, you might find something suitable in history, or mythology; or, what more notable and ancient than the name of your own city?

F. H. C., Richmond.—1. It is a matter of opinion as to which is the best breed of game chickens. 2. You will find it impossible to get the Derby breed perfectly pure in this country. 3. Write to J. Mulholland, 122 Mott street, New York.

W. T., Middletown.—1. The only meeting this year yet to take place at Monmouth Park commences on Wednesday next, and continues three days. 2. See the head of our baseball columns. 3. Neither Tom Bowling nor Count D'Orsay was entered for the Kenner Stakes.

J. L., Evansville.—Both are married. Address Mr. Connor, and is now residing in New Orleans, La.; Emma to Mr. Navarre. Nothing has been heard of her for some years.

J. M. G., Evansville.—Humphrey Evans ran three times in 1871 at the Fair Grounds in this city. He was owned by Mr. Evans, where he was second to Hampton in a mile dash in 1:54; and twice at Lexington, where he was distanced in both trials, never coming to the score.

HENRY BENCK, Minerville.—The fastest railroad time in this country is 14 miles in 11 minutes, by the locomotive Hamilton Davis, with six cars attached, N. Y. Central road.

TWO-FORTY, Chicago.—The extract is strictly correct, with the mere exceptions that Dusky received one locket and Dewey the other, and that consequently Gardner received none.

NARRAGANSETT, Providence.—It is the custom in England to call all minstrel troupes Christy's, and many such have performed at St. James' Hall, Liverpool, and some at St. George's Hall in that town.

J. PED, Taunton.—1. Glen Seward is accredited with having run 150 yards in 14½ seconds, in England. 2. Tom Sayers was 39 years old at the time of his death, Nov. 11, 1865.

CONSTANT READER, Memphis.—1. Not unless, in addition to the certificate of copyright, the words "All rights reserved" are printed thereon. 2. He does, to his own dramatization. 3. Certainly not.

M. L., Salina.—We do not answer questions by mail. We do not think he is dead, as we have no record of it. Address a letter to him, stating your business, in care of this office.

BUSINESS MAN.—1. No. It is being converted into a theatre, to be called Daly's fifth avenue Theatre. 2. See minstrel summary of this issue. 3. Address them in care of THE CLIPPER. 4. No. They are in California.

C. D. H., Orwell.—Ham Norman's Museum of Curiosities is Cuba safely, and is probably now exhibiting in the small towns in the interior of the island, from which news seldom reaches us.

T. C. F., Cleveland.—No time is officially taken on the English turf, and the time given by the sporting press varies materially. No comparison can therefore be drawn.

WEST DAYTON.—Goldsmith Maid is by Edsall's Hambletonian, a son of Rysdyck's Hambletonian, out of a Woodlawn mare. Very few, if any, of the fast trotters are entirely thoroughbred.

JOHN BILLINGS, Balto.—4. Harry Bassett and Joe Daniels never ran together before they ran for the Saratoga Cup last month; they are owned by the same parties. 2. We have not got the dates.

O. H. H., Cleveland.—The fastest mile time in this country is Alarm's 1:42¾. Longfellow's 1:40, made in the first mile of the Saratoga Cup, is no record, and cannot be claimed as such, as it was not officially taken.

F. L. G., Montreal.—1. We have a correspondent in your city. 2. The fastest mile record is 1:42¾, made by Alarm. 3. There is no authentic half-or quarter mile record.

D. H. H.—Your decision was perfectly right, for only one man can go alone, and he is the one who takes the responsibility of the trump. In the case mentioned A is entitled to one point only for taking three tricks.

ROWING, Chicago.—The race between the Oxford and Harvard University crews on the Thames, Eng., was won by the former by less than two lengths in 22:17; distance, 4¼ miles.

J. M. J.—1. The same person can fill both positions. 2. No, unless the articles of agreement should prove defective. 3. According to the rules, a boat which takes another's water does so at its peril.

L. R. H., Belair.—Both are wrong. They were to have fought in May last, but did not get to the ground until the 3d of this month, however, they fought off-hand on Long Island, Chambers winning.

JOHN, Washington.—1. Under such circumstances the sentence could not be carried into effect; but such a case could not occur. 2. The best single standing jump on record is 53½in. by Ed. Searles.

GYMNAST, Lewiston.—1. Two performers of the kind you name could command $150 per week. 2. Their expenses are paid.

C. H., Ashland.—Further than that it was advertised in THE CLIPPER some time ago, we know nothing of the lottery.

CITIZEN.—You had better leave it alone. If it is anything of a criminal nature, the police authorities are the proper persons for you to make your complaint to.

A. AND R.—The best way to ascertain is for the boy to be for you to make another statement of the question and have it answered again.

L. H.—It is simply a matter of opinion, but most persons in this vicinity would claim that the New York department was the best.

D. H.—The population of London, Eng., is over three millions and a quarter, and that of Pekin, China, is estimated at 1,800,000.

J. B. K.—We have not heard whether they have disbanded or not. It makes no difference in the status of their player, as the sixty days date from their last game.

W. P., Peoria, Ill.—Yes. There are several in the country who perform that feat. We do not know where it is published.

ANDY.—Martin is right. No game ever has been legally decided by the score at the fifth inning, if six or more even innings had been played.

E. A. B., Boonville.—1. She was born in London, Eng., Feb. 19, 1856. 2. Once. His name is not given to the public.

H. W., St. Louis.—Obtain a personal interview with the managers in your city and state to them frankly your wishes.

ALMA, Chelsea.—Certainly not. The Harvards and Yales are both in the Amateur Association, and they have not lost their identity by the connection.

R. L., Cohoes.—Tom Sayers won both his battles with Bill Benjamin, the first taking place Jan. 5, 1858, and the second April 5, 1859.

JUNE BROTHERHOOD, Murphysboro.—Inclose $1.25 to this office, and 30 Centre street, this city, for the "Manual of Sporting Rules."

F. A. MURRAY, Lonoke.—1. Tom King defeated John C. Heenan in 24 rounds, 35 minutes. 2. King never fought Tom Sayers.

E. W. B., Williamsburgh.—He is the same person that was performing with Bryant's Minstrels some time since.

PULASKI, Savannah.—1. The greatest run at four-ball carems is 1,483, by John McDevitt. 2. 244, by Francois Chassay, is the greatest at three-ball carems.

R. D. B., Cooperstown.—Thank you for the old paper containing the original legend on which "Old Rip" was founded. We shall give it an early airing.

DESIGNER, Orange.—There is a free school of design connected with Cooper Institute, but we do not know what are the rules governing it.

CHARTER OAK, St. Louis.—1. A letter addressed in care of this office will reach her. 2. When last heard from she was in California.

H. H. H., Emporia.—1. We should think so. 2. Yes. 3. It is a matter of private agreement. 4. Say February. 5. Probably. 6. Cannot say.

O. H., Springfield.—He is traveling with a circus. 2. We do not compare the relative merits of performers in this column. 3. Such has been our custom.

E. F. A.—You neither could nor can at date nor any review of the performance of Harry Robinson's Minstrels.

C. R., Swampscott.—Professionals would be very likely to see your advertisement in THE CLIPPER. Seven lines would cost you $1 for each insertion.

BLOOD.—For three months, cash in advance, the advertisement will cost $15.60. No charge for changing dates.

F. AND K.—It is two miles and a quarter from the City Hall to Bull's Head Hotel, Twenty-fourth street and Third avenue.

J. H., Virginia.—1. The fastest time on record is 2:16¾. 2. Goldsmith Maid's fastest trotting time is 2:16¾, Rysdyck's 2:17¾.

E., Mobile.—It may be possible, but we doubt it. In rifle shooting, skill can be acquired by near-sighted persons who are obliged to wear spectacles.

A BROOKLYN SPORT.—1. At forty-five ace is low in black, and B wins. 2. In cutting for deal, ace is not low in all games.

T. GRAY, Lonaconing.—If there were no marks of shot on the hat, it would be scored to the shooter. The referee was the proper authority to decide the point.

W. D. C., Buffalo.—1. George Trussell was killed by his antagonist in Chicago, Sept. 4, 1866. 2. Wm. McKeever was killed at Chicago, Sept. 22, 1866.

J. W. L., St. John.—In the race named, Lady Thorn won the first, second and fourth heats in 2:18¾; 2:18½; and 2:21; George Palmer the third heat in 2:19¾.

P. G. F.—Providence.—Wash them thoroughly twice a week with carbolic soap and warm water, and then with lukewarm water.

DRAW POKER, Boston.—The dealer is perfectly right in refusing to draw from the discarded cards. There must be a new deal.

J. F. H., Putsin Bay.—B has got a right to a sight for the $2 he has, which is all the money he possesses, provided he made good his previous raise of $10.

PROFUNDO, Phila.—Four sevens and an ace turned up count 24; twelve by fifteens and twelve for double pair royal.

P. H. C.—As trumps (the ace of hearts) were led, and you do not hold any, you can throw away from any suit on it.

JOCKEY.—If the bet was on the time of the first heat, it must be decided by the time of that heat, no matter whether it was a dead heat or not.

PHENOMENA.—1. George Palmer's best time is 2:16¾. 2. A horse winning a heat gains a record, even if he loses the race.

SAGINAW.—B loses, because the authority he agreed to abide by decided against him. The revised edition is the authority.

SEVERAL SUBSCRIBERS.—Four aces and a king or four kings and an ace, are the best hand that can be held at poker.

J. J. R., Portland.—Rub the roots of the hair with white precipitate, taking care to avoid sweating the horse or wetting his skin for some days afterwards.

HELENIAN.—After the whole stakes are up, and no forfeit has been mentioned, the entire amount becomes forfeit, and B is entitled to the whole money.

T. F. M.—The dealer must give each player the same number of cards each time round. A is therefore wrong in dealing C two cards and B three cards.

R. W. E., Buffalo.—You win the bet, as the withdrawal of Lucy did not affect your wager of Goldsmith Maid against the field.

INQUIRER.—If a player orders up his partner, he cannot demand the latter's best card. He can, however, assist him.

CONSTANT READER.—The Scottish games of the N. Y. Caledonian Club take place at Jones' Wood, this city, on Sept. 4.

J. D. C., Jefferson City.—1. We have no data to estimate their wealth by. 2. Thanks, but we do not require one.

NEWKIRK, Philadelphia.—1. Apply to some minstrel manager in person, and show him what you can do. 2. From $25 to $50 per week.

CHEZELEE.—"Our First Performance" is not as well gotten up as some of your other productions.

FRED, Boston.—1. It is advertised in THE CLIPPER. 2. See baseball department.

ZANESIUS, Pittsburgh.—He is not in the business at present.

CONSTANT READER, Syracuse.—You can get the book of Ed. James, who advertises.

CHECKER FRIEZ.—A weak solution of nitric acid makes a colorless writing fluid.

F. M. C.—1. The advertisement costs $3 for each insertion. 2. The name is a rather long one.

APOLLO HALL, Binghamton.—Read CLIPPER Varieties weekly.

VAL ZANGHEISER, Cincinnati.—No; and we never heard of one in this country.

No. 2, Lansingburgh.—We will answer queries of that kind in our review of players after the season closes.

O. B., Brooklyn.—The Atlantic Club was organized in 1855.

G. B. A.—1. No; it does not. 2. Yes. 3. It was merely an exhibition game, and of no account.

W. F. S.—If the striker was put out before reaching first base, the run does not count. If afterwards, it does.

A READER.—1. Yes. 2 They are a strong team, but have been badly managed.

C. B., Morrisville.—No; he is out the moment the ball is caught.

CONSTANT READER, Montreal.—Inclose $1 to E. D. Bates, ventriloquist, Niblo's Garden, N. Y.

BROWNING, Chicago.—1. Ever since he appeared in public. 2. Certainly.

W. AND H.—1. James Lewis. 2. In this city. 3. Cannot say at present.

NETTIE, Providence.—Letters still here; will advertise again, as you request.

THE WOLF.—Sendigo (Wm. Thompson) is not dead, but resides at Nottingham, Eng. He recently married preacher.

L. G. FOSTER, St. Joseph.—Apply to Ed. James, whose address you will see in an advertisement.

G. & Co., Hartford.—A letter addressed to them in care of this office will reach them.

SPECTATOR.—We do not keep the addresses of letters mailed from this office.

CLEM JOHNSON, High Falls.—1. At any drug store. 2. Any performer who sings it. 3. From $25 to $75.

L. T., Brooklyn.—Just organized. We know nothing of his responsibility.

W. H. D., Canton, O.—We may use it in some future issue.

P. S. P., Ottawa.—Bourne's translation of Anacreon is published by Harper & Brothers, New York.

W. B. R., Andover.—We cannot undertake to give any opinion as to the reliability of lotteries.

F. M. H.—"Our Jim" is apt to do such things. Will endeavor to get at it.

D. A. S.—Our religious patrons would read us out of church were we to publish your "Camp-meeting chips."

J. E. C., Corning.—We have more than we can use for some time, and must decline yours.

MONOC CHARLIE, Nashville.—We appreciate your very liberal offer, but respectfully decline it.

C. C. B., Mansfield.—THE CLIPPER can be mailed to any part of Germany, postage prepaid, for $6.50 per annum.

MERT, New Orleans.—Write to the Secretaries of Convents, and he will send you printed instructions.

J. H. B.—We have no record of the cast, but will endeavor to ascertain for you. Watch subsequent issues.

E. F.—Your statement is strictly correct. Date, Thursday, Feb. 9, 1854.

ST. LOUIS.—1. She died July 1 last. 2. The funeral announcement gave her age as 55 years, 3 months and 14 days.

T. F. S., Bridgeport.—Probably five or six lines would be sufficient.

H. S., Baltimore.—You can get it of Wilmer & Rogers, 31 Beekman street, New York. Subscription, $14 a year.

F. S. L. J. G., Niagara Falls.—1. We do not know his name. 2. A full list of the Saratoga and local fairs will be published in THE CLIPPER shortly.

F. H. C.—You are not obliged to play a heart when the ace of hearts is led, and hearts are not trumps.

BOX, Fall River.—The bower is high, and deals, therefore B wins.

C. H., Jr., Portland.—We do not know the age of Gilbreth's Kid.

T. C. B., Washington.—The "widow" must be turned up, and one draw allowed.

J. H., Evansville.—Both players going out together, they divide the stakes.

READER, Washington.—Flora Temple is alive and owned by M. A. Welch, Chestnut Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

H. M. AND E. B., Phila.—A person betting on a certainty wins, provided there is no fraud employed.

R. F.—Address Frederick Hall, Box 624 and 626 South Sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa., was burned on the morning of the 13th inst. The loss is $10,000.

J. B., Chicago.—The fastest mile heat trotted by Flora Temple was 2:19¾, at Chicago.

OLD MAN, Wheeling.—Alarm ran the fastest mile on record—1:42¾.

G. S., Steubenville.—Send 30c. to D. J. Longstreet, Secretary National Trotting Association, Providence, R. I.

W. A. A., Baltimore.—The best time for 100 yards by a pedestrian is 9½ seconds, by Geo. Seward.

B. F. S., Springfield.—He is not traveling at present. Admiral Dot is the little man with Barnum's show.

OLD SUBSCRIBER, Baltimore.—Watch our variety summary.

CONSTANT READER.—Sunday is the first day in the week.

A SUBSCRIBER.—Consult some good dancing master in your city.

J. W. WHITE, Addison.—The letter is still in our care.

CLIPPER HOUSE, Elizabeth.—No, nor do we require it.

C. S., Philadelphia.—Arrested are not in our line.

ROLLING STONE.—Such will be thankfully received.

J. C. V.—It is quite as good as some of his pieces.

C. W. H.—See answer in this issue to H. F.

C. S., Pittsburgh.—We shall publish it soon.

J. P. D.—Your communication is inadmissible.

A CONSTANT READER, Boston.—Yes; send 24c.

J. M., Paris.—Both players go out together.

C. W. V. Circleville.—Will be used soon.

F. H., Detroit.—No, not in federal election.

ITHAM, R. I.—Will be examined in our line.

W. S. S.—No such record has been kept.

J. A., Kansas City.—He is in this city.

M. M. J., Chicago.—A full benefit was tendered.

NORTHAMPTON.—He did not train Mace.

JOHN R. F.—Accepted for publication.

WILL R. T.—Probably in your city.

J. Mc., Alarm, one mile in 1:42¾.

"OLD SOL," Galesburg.—Yes.

SUBSCRIBER, Rochester.—They were not.

G. F. B., Central Falls.—Yes.

BOY READER.—Yes.

NOTWITHSTANDING that the American department cut but a sorry figure at the opening of the Vienna Exposition, it looms up grandly towards the close. Columbia bears off nine diplomas of honor, and these are the highest grade of prizes. Four are either for improved instructional methods or for progress in education, and are severally awarded to the National Bureau of Education, the State of Massachusetts, the city of Boston, and the Washington Smithsonian Institute. The American system of dentistry has evoked a diploma, as also, although not unexpectedly, have the cotton and the cotton products of the United States. Philadelphia is honored with a diploma for progress in iron manufactures, New York City for superior machinery, and Hoosick Falls, N. Y., for agricultural implements. Aside from these grand diplomas for machines, about every one in three of the American exhibitors in the machinery class is the recipient of a medal. All this is doing well enough, considering that, having had at home sore experiences of industrial expositions, and not knowing that Vienna would prove a whit better, Uncle Sam did but half try.

"OLD PROBABILITIES" failed to predict the coming of last week's storm. This is not his fault, but that of Congress, which should long ago have placed at his command the means for enlarging his field of observation. The storm came from a quarter in which there are no signal-stations as yet. So useful a branch of the public service as the Weather Bureau has proved itself to be should not be crippled at any material point; and one of the first acts of Congress, when it next assembles, ought to be to put Gen. Meyers in daily communication with Hudson's Bay, and at least occasionally with places farther north.

RICH IN EXPEDIENTS are the community of suicides. It is but a short time since an enfeebled Chinaman actually stuffed his throat with straw "to keep the wind away." Fewer days have passed since a German, from whom the last feeble ray of hope had fled, sought to make his mundane exit sure by calling two pistols into simultaneous play, for fear one would not be enough. And now a St. Louis woman comes upon the scene, and ingeniously coerces Death by cutting her throat with a bucksaw!

SOME OF OUR interesting reporters tell tall things. One of the fraternity, a few weeks since, described how he and the King of Sweden bobbed and nobbed together; and more recently a brother quill-driver put into the mouth of Prince Bismarck sentiments of rampant atheism. Many of our assumed oracles seem to take all this as gospel truth; while we—simply our opinion in the matter—will be best understood from our observation that the sance of the Munchausens is not yet played out.

SCENE IN A DRINKING SALOON.—Thirsty Customer.—Barkeeper, just give me a glass of brandy and water.

Green Barkeeper.—(Pushing bottle to customer).—Here you are, sir.

Customer.—(Pouring out brandy).—Now for the water.

Green Barkeeper.—Oh, we always put the water in the bottle with the brandy.

Customer.—(Filling up his glass).—Ah, indeed! In that case I'll just take a double dose.

AS THE DIFFERENCE IN DEGREE between two very familiar adjectives, so is that between the failure and the success of the balloon project. "The reason is as plain as way to parish church," at least to all who know who it is that are at the back of the enterprise. If the balloon does not go up, it will be a capital sell; and if, upon the other hand, it should go up and fulfill its grand mission, will not The Daily Graphic be a mighty Goodsell?

THE COBURGHS are lucky. There is the Duke of Edinburgh, for example, to whom the British Parliament voted an income of £25,000 a year. Conjointly, H. R. H. gets a beautiful Princess for wife, whose dowry most likely will be a splendid one. The English democracy have had a snarl over the royal tar's allowance, and have pitched their objections in a very high tone.

SING SING PRISON is such an easy place to escape from that it is said there has been quite a wrangle among the prisoners as to who should have the next chance. The difficulty has been amicably settled, however, the claimants for first escape deciding the matter by a game of euchre.

DISAPPEARED IN A CLOUD—The oarsman who started to row from Philadelphia to New Orleans. He had scarcely struck Pittsburgh before he was in nubibus; and, what is more, the obscuration was not altogether caused by Pittsburgh smoke. However, he is still moving.

ONE REASON why so many people find their business at a stand-still, is that they stand still themselves.

THINGS ARE WARM in HAVANA, a correspondent informs us. In that benighted region nobody thinks of going out in the daytime if he can help it. Even the poor cab-drivers carry umbrellas. People get drunk in the head without imbibing anything. The nights, however, are said to be cooler than in New York. All things considered, perhaps it is just as well to remain in New York.

THERE IS NO DOUBTING the fact that President Grant is a man of extraordinary physique. The cares of his office are many and onerous—quite enough to tax any man. Against these, however, he has borne up wonderfully against that which is worse still—the persistent onslaughts of Dana. Truly, our President must be a strong man to be proof against so many Sun-strokes.

INTENT UPON shooting prairie chickens, Gov. Woodson of Missouri "went west" into Kansas, whereupon he was ignobly snatched by the authorities, and fined for violating the game laws of that State. In vain the Governor pleaded. Lawnessness should be punished, and no Missouri Compromise would be tolerated. The fine had to be paid. Thus it is no longer Kansas that "bleeds," but Missouri through its executive.

HE LIVES in San Francisco, and he has just completed a table in which one hundred thousand pieces of wood were used. And it might be added that "he made it all out of his own head."

NEWS OF THE WEEK BOILED DOWN.

☞ The prolonged northeast storm that raged so violently on the 12th and 14th inst. left its marks not only all along this coast, but also upon the lakes and far up many of the streams tributary to the Atlantic. It was especially severe throughout New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland. At Berlin, in the latter State, the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal was seriously damaged by a break, and at Elk River Landing a bridge was washed away, five telegraph wires bearing it company. There were land-slides innumerable on the different railroads, and but few trains were enabled to make time. For several hours, while telegraphic rumors reached it of the loss of the passenger boats Plymouth Rock and Seabird, Long Branch was cut off alike from Philadelphia and this city. The heavy rains and the swollen streams contributed to the death of quite a number of persons in different sections. At Emporium, in Cameron County, Pa., there was a shower of lumps of ice almost the size of a man's head, while the crops and fairly stripped the fruit-trees bare. Lightning also played well its part in this grand drama of the elements, killing there that fatally injuring four others, at Earlyville, Elk County, Pa.

☞ While conveying to prison a horse-stealer, named Peter Yoe, at Johnsonburg, Warren County, Pa., the officer was surrounded by a mob, who demanded that the prisoner be delivered into their hands. The sheriff refused, when the mob, like the murderer of Martin Gersbach of Contra Costa County, California, was captured on Aug. 11 at Battle Mountain, without resistance.

☞ The famous clipper ship La Escocesa, which recently arrived from San Francisco, sank in the Mersey, Eng., on Aug. 12.

☞ Desiring to possess her property, Charles Moore of Owosso, Mich., on Aug. 10 poisoned his mother-in-law, a Mrs. Wartemberg.

☞ The police on Aug. 12 made a raid upon numerous liquor-dealers in Boston, Mass., and seized a large quantity of liquor and ale.

☞ A dispatch via London, Aug. 12, says the town of Christianstadt, on Kalmar Sound, Sweden, has been entirely destroyed by fire.

☞ Mr. O'Donoghue, member of Parliament for Tralee, has been appointed Consul for Lyons.

☞ A fire in Lake City, Fla., on the morning of the 11th inst., destroyed property to the value of $20,000.

☞ Delano & Hyde's landry, at Port Jervis, N. Y., was burned Aug. 11. Loss, $3,000.

☞ The betrothal of Prince Arthur of England to the Princess of Denmark is announced.

☞ Bob Wimer was killed and Hall severely injured by the explosion of a boiler on the Pacific Railroad, near Tipton, Mo., on Aug. 12.

☞ The Canadian Parliament, which has adjourned, will be speedily convened to consider the investigation into the Pacific Railroad scandal.

THE U. S. man-of-war Canadaigua has arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, with seventy of her crew sick with yellow fever.

☞ The York County, Me., Senatorial Convention assembled on the 13th inst., and nominated John E. Butler, John Hall and Benjamin N. Hanson for Senators.

☞ Eight representatives of the judiciary of Japan have arrived in San Francisco, Cal., on a tour of inspection of the courts, municipal offices, etc.

☞ At Salt Lake City, Utah, on the 12th inst., William Kirby, a sport, shot Tom Lynch in the back. He too is a sport, and will probably recover.

☞ At Ohama, Ont., Aug. 12, a fire destroyed the dwelling-house of a Mr. Jordan, and burned to death two of his children.

☞ A collision of a buggy and a carriage, at New Orleans, La., Aug. 12, M. O. Larens was instantly killed, and T. L. Couret seriously injured.

☞ Wellington Hall, Nos. 624 and 626 South Sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa., was burned on the morning of the 13th inst. The loss is $10,000.

☞ At Mishawaka, Mich., Aug. 17, J. Dietz & Co.'s vinegar works were burned, together with a house adjoining. Loss, $12,000; insurance, $7,000.

☞ A man named Scott killed his wife and then committed suicide in the woods, near Seaforth, Ont., August 16.

☞ Perry Haas, convicted of the murder of Martin Oberdorf, cut his throat with a razor at the Sunbury (Pa.) jail, Aug. 17.

☞ The Tribunal of Justice at Seville, Spain, have condemned several persons to death for firing buildings while that city was occupied by the Carlists.

☞ The City Mills, Quincy, Ill., together with a large quantity of grain and flour, were destroyed by fire on Aug. 12. Loss, $60,000; insurance, $30,000.

☞ Autenreith's cabinet factory, Hunter's Point, L. I., was burned on the night of the 13th inst. Loss, $60,000; insured for $48,000.

☞ The disabled steamship Arndt, after a thirty-six days' passage from Stettin, Germany, reached this port on Aug. 13. All well on board.

☞ The stores Nos. 260 and 261 West street, this city, were damaged by fire on the night of the 13th inst. Loss, $16,000; insurance, $8,000.

☞ At Hampden, Me., Aug. 13, a maiden lady named Dorcas Knowles, aged 71, committed suicide by hanging. No motive ascribed.

☞ The coffee manufactory of Sewell, Day & Co., Roxbury, Mass., caught fire on Aug 11. Loss, $40,000; insurance, $30,000.

☞ On the 12th, Contreras started from Cartagena to march upon Madrid; but he was defeated while on the road, and his band dispersed.

☞ The insurgents in Paraguay have been defeated, and Caballero and other revolutionary chiefs have fled the country.

☞ At Toronto, Ont., Post-office was entered by robbers on Aug. 10, and ninety-one registered letters were stolen from the safe.

☞ The abduction of his daughter led John Curtin into shooting and fatally wounding one Johnson, on Main street, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 11.

☞ William Nash, the murderer of Martin Gersbach of Contra Costa County, California, was captured on Aug. 11 at Battle Mountain, without resistance.

☞ The famous clipper ship La Escocesa, which recently arrived from San Francisco, sank in the Mersey, Eng., on Aug. 12.

☞ Desiring to possess her property, Charles Moore of Owosso, Mich., on Aug. 10 poisoned his mother-in-law, a Mrs. Wartemberg.

☞ The police on Aug. 12 made a raid upon numerous liquor-dealers in Boston, Mass., and seized a large quantity of liquor and ale.

BASEBALL.

VIOLATING THE RULES.

On August 6, Fleet C. the Resolute Club played in the Irvington nine in the latter's game with the Easton Club nine at Easton. The next day he played in the Resolutes against the Mutuals. On August 7, Wadsworth played in the Resolute nine against the Mutuals, and on August 11 he played in the Easton nine at Easton against the Nassau of Brooklyn. On August 7, Jo. Allison played in the Resolute nine against the Mutuals, and on August 11 and 12 he played in the Mutual nine against the Philadelphias and Baltimores. On August 12, A. Allison played in the Irvington nine against the Atlantics, after playing in the Resolute nine on August 7. Now, all this was done in violation of the rules both of the Amateur and of the Professional National Association; and in every instance, the games in which the rules were thus violated were forfeited by scores of 9 to 0 by the offending nine. Moreover, in the case of the violation of the professional rules by the Mutual Club, not only were the games forfeited, but, by another rule governing the championship contests, not one of these professional games can count in the championship series.

The Professional Association's code, fifth rule, section 7, requires, first, that players must be "regular members of the club they represent;" secondly, they must not have been members of any other baseball club—whether in or out of the Professional Association—or have played in any match game with any other club for sixty days prior to the date of the match they are to play in; thirdly, every player taking part in a regular match game, no matter what number of innings are played, shall be, in the meaning of this section of the rules, considered a member of the club he plays with, no matter whether he is actually so or not; fourthly, all matches shall be considered "regular" in which nines of two contesting clubs are opposed to each other.

By this rule it will be seen that the playing of D. Allison in the Mutual nine before October 7 is necessarily "a violation of the rules of the Professional Association;" and inasmuch as he did play in their nine on August 11 and 12, after playing in the Resolute nine on August 7, the rule in question was thereby violated. Now, section 3 of the special code of championship rules of the professional Association says: "No game shall count in the series of championship contests, in which any of the rules of the Professional Association shall have been violated."

By this rule neither of the games of Aug. 11 and 12 should count in the championship series. By the same rule, too, the victory claimed by the Philadelphians over the Resolutes in June last, in which Wadsworth illegally took part, cannot be counted in the club series of legally won games. It was forfeited 9 to 0 to the Philadelphians, as were the games by the Mutuals in Philadelphia and Baltimore last week; but, besides this forfeiture, there is the ugly fact that no game in which any of the rules are violated can count in the championship series.

We have thus shown how and by whom the laws of the game have been violated. These "irregularities" must come before the Judiciary Committee at the proper time, when the penalties will be inflicted, and the violators admonished, after a thorough investigation shall have been had. The laws of the game must be respected, or baseball will lose its hold on public support.

ATHLETIC vs. WASHINGTON.

The Athletics, after enjoying a vacation of three weeks' duration, made their reappearance on the 16th inst., their opponents being the Washingtons, and the scene of operations the ground of the former club, at Twenty-fifth and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia. The Athletics played with renewed vim, proving that their long rest had not deteriorated their playing qualities, as in the case of their formidable rivals the Philadelphias. The Washingtons on three previous occasions this season just escaped a whitewash, being literally within an ace of suffering this disastrous defeat; but on the 16th inst., the Athletics, who had this season "Chicagoed" the Mutuals and Bostons by the respective scores of 12 to 0, and 3 to 0, succeeded by their fine fielding in retiring for the third time, without scoring, a powerful professional nine; the latter, too, having covered themselves with glory by their decisive defeat of the Philadelphias but a week previously. The weather on this occasion was very pleasant, and the ground was in pretty fair condition, considering the recent heavy rains. The Washingtons utterly failed to hit McBride's very effective pitching, supported as it was by the fine fielding of his nine, but five reaching first base on clean hits and but two on errors; both of the latter, however, being excusable ones, owing to the ground. The Athletics made seven runs in the first three innings, and the same number of runs in the last two, earning eight and being blanked the other four innings in succession. The Athletics in the innings in which they scored were credited with seventeen clean hits by which they reached first base, and three others reached the same point by excusable errors on the part of Warren and Thomas. The features of the innings in which the Athletics were blanked were three splendid throws to second by Snyder, that each time retired one of the best runners. Most of the fielding was performed by the in-fielders, the Athletic out-fielders having little or nothing to do. Fisler, Sutton and McGeary of the Athletics, and Warren and Glenn of the Washingtons, excelled in fielding. McGeary and Murnan led the batting score for the Athletics. The following is the score by McLean:

BASEBALL GOSSIP.

There is considerable talk among men who invest in baseball stock companies in regard to taking action in opposition to the entry of co-operative nines into the championship arena. The interests of the two classes of organizations in the professional fraternity have been found by experience to clash, owing to the one party having vested money interests at stake, while the other works with playing capital only. There is no doubt that if the championship arena were confined to regular salaried nines, and fewer games were played, the result would be more profitable. Another result of such a narrowing of the professional circle would be that more interest would centre in the local club nines; and, moreover, there would probably be less chance of players being tempted to enter into fraudulent arrangements. When a player is in receipt of a regular salary from a responsible club, he has something to do to sustain himself creditably in his position. Not so the player who is dependent on the precarious receipts of a co-operative organization. Many believe from the experience of the present season that the co-operative system of professional ballplaying is a failure and an injury to the regular clubs.....The chess-players had a practice game on the Capitoline Grounds on Aug. 15, with the result of an enjoyable afternoon's exercise, despite the facts that the grounds were wet, and that the two representative teams were not on hand. The regular match game—return game—will be played next Friday. Clark, the operatic basso, pitched on one side in the practice match. The score was 24 to 10. Only 3 to 2 were earned runs.....Baltimore stock is looking up again. Since the advent of Carey as captain, the Canaries have won nearly every game they have played. This shows that Carey has done something or other which his predecessors failed to do. The September contests between the Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia and Athletic Clubs will be looked for with interest.....The Union Ball Grounds, Brooklyn, N. Y., have been leased until 1876, and then can be leased for ten years more; so there will be a ground for professional play in Brooklyn for that time, or as long as it pays.....A New York journal states that the Judiciary Committee have decided that players engaged in the nine of a club which disbands can play in another club nine directly afterwards. The questions are, When did they so decide? And if they did, does not the decision nullify the Professional Association rule?.....The addition of Addy to the Boston nine will materially strengthen Harry's team. Addy is a very active, earnest worker, thoroughly reliable, "plays with his head," as the saying is, and is good either in the in or the out field.....The prospects are that there will be six stock-company nines in the arena in 1874.

ATLANTIC vs. MUTUAL.

One of five games played between these clubs, in but one were the Atlantics able to score even average runs off Matthews' pitching, while in the "bad day" game they scored 12 to 2. The first four games were legal contests—not so the last, however, as the playing of D. Allison in the Mutual nine forfeited the game to the Atlantics by 9 to 0. This last contest was marked by some very fine play, Allison especially showing up well behind the bat—in fact, he played more in his old Cincinnati style than he has done before. He was struck hard in one inning, and literally floored by the ball, but he faced the music again as soon as he got sensible. The feature on the Atlantic side was the splendid fielding of Remsen. Important errors by others, however, nullified the good effects of the fine play. Only three runs were earned off Britt's pitching, and but two off Matthews' delivery. No less than twenty fly-balls were caught by the Mutuals. Practically the contest was only an "exhibition" game, as it does not count in the championship series. The following is the score:

NASSAU vs. ARLINGTON.

The third game of the series between these Brooklyn and New York clubs took place at Prospect Park on Aug. 16, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, and it proved to be a well-played game and a close and interesting contest. The first game of the series was won by the Arlingtons and the second by the Nassaus, and the victory of the latter in this match gives them the series. The splendid left-field play of little McGrath of the Arlingtons was the feature of the match. The score below gives the details:

STATEN ISLAND vs. NEW ROCHELLE.

The Staten Island nine went to New Rochelle, N. Y., to play the Confidence Club of that place Aug. 16, minus the services of Sprague, Dollard and Armstrong, and came very nearly leaving a trophy behind them, some excellent batting in the last inning alone saving them from defeat. CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES LAST WEEK.

August 11, Mutual 6, vs. Philadelphia 4, at Philadelphia.
August 12, Baltimore 7, vs. Mutual 2, at Baltimore.
August 15, Baltimore 24, vs. Washington 9, at Baltimore.
August 16, Athletic 14, vs. Washington 0, at Philadelphia.
August 16, Boston 11, vs. Philadelphia 8, at Chicago.
August 16, Mutual 12, vs. Atlantic 4, at Brooklyn.

NOTES.—The following veteran nine of the Knickerbocker Club challenge any nine of their ages in any club in the country to play them a game. The youngest is 45 and the oldest over 60 years of age. The nine include Hinsdale, Davis, Purdey, Taylor, McDonald, State, Bensel, Avery and Dorsett, with Bell and Kissam as subs.....Owing to the playing of D. Allison in the match at Philadelphia on Monday, all bets not made with the knowledge that he was to play in the Mutual nine are off. The game was forfeited to the Philadelphians 9 to 0, as will be every Mutual game Allison plays in until Oct. 7.....Cuthbert, Treacy, Zettlein and Devlin of the Philadelphias are authoritatively stated to have signed an agreement to play with the Chicago Club next season. Wood and Malone of the Philadelphias have also been offered engagements with the Chicagoes, but have not yet accepted the same.....Jacob Meyerle, an elder brother of the well-known third-base man of the Philadelphia Club, died of consumption at his residence in that city August 11. He was present at the game between the Philadelphia and Baltimore Clubs on the 7th inst.....Mack, the first baseman of the Philadelphia Club, was so badly injured by being run away with by a team of unmanageable horses, that it is feared he will not be able to play ball again.

HAND-BALL MATCH.—A double-handed match at hand-ball, for $500, best out of thirteen games, twenty-one aces each, has been made, Phil. Casey and Jim Dunn of Brooklyn being pitted against James O'Brien and James Farron of Chicago, Ill. The match is to be decided in the latter city, at No. 181 W. Harrison-street, the first seven games to be played on Monday, Aug. 25, and the others on Sept. 1. The Brooklynites contemplate leaving the metropolis for Chicago on the 21st, accompanied by Barney McQuade and others. Alderman Powers is stakeholder. The principals are first-class players, and the display of skill may be anticipated.

BALTIMORE vs. WASHINGTON.—Underneath appears the score, by innings, of a game played by the above clubs at Baltimore, Md., Aug. 15. The ground was wet and slippery, and in consequence the fielding was poor:

Baltimore.....0 5 2 2 1 2 5 7—24
Washington.....2 2 2 0 0 1 1 0—9

Runs earned—Baltimore, 13; Washington, 4. Bases on errors—Baltimore, 9; Washington, 3. Total bases—Baltimore, 45; Washington 20. Umpire—John K. Sears of the Baltimore Club. Time, 2h. 15m.

BOSTON vs. PHILADELPHIA.—Not far from 3,000 persons witnessed the game between these clubs, played at Chicago, August 16. The Philadelphia were the favorites at odds of $100 to $75, but were beaten by a score of 11 to 8.

CHAS. H. ROBESON of Buffalo, N. Y., and Eugene C. Thompson of Charlestown, Mass., are, it is said, matched to wrestle at the former place on the first Wednesday in September for $500 a side.

A CARD TO THE PROFESSION
—Very many of my friends are aware that for several months I have been associated with the GOVERNMENTAL SECRET SERVICE, allocating but a portion of my time to my profession. I now most respectfully beg to announce that I have accepted an additional and a very important traveling commission, which will necessitate my immediate withdrawal from the boards.
All my Fall and Winter engagements for 1873 and '74 have been honorably canceled, and my extensive wardrobe, together with books, manuscripts of original plays, &c., have been disposed of to William Butler, Esq., of Philadelphia, who desires me to state that a sale list of a portion of the wardrobe and the copyrights, and very successful drama, "I. O. U., or The Way of the Wicked," with its full music, programme cuts, fifteen original blocks for posters (now at Jackson's), will appear in Col. Brown's advertising column of CLIPPER next week.
And now (forever), reluctantly leaving crabbed stage-door keepers, worthy "fly men," important scenic artists, smiling ladies, obliging gentlemen, ambitious snobs, whole-"soled" managers, welcome treasurer, and—printers, I bid God speed. To all, a little more sociability, a trifle less "fire-water," and many, many prosperous days. Enough for this time.

GRANDMOTHER'S DREAM.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY ELSIE MAY.

Lay the logs up high in the fire-place, Will,
For the bitter blasts of March wind is cold and chill,
Though the meadow-larks have begun to sing,
And the robin carols of coming Spring.
This evening I watched as the sun went down,
Till the west was painted with gold and brown,
And the distant forest looked weirdly grand
As the darkness fell on the silent land.

My thoughts wandered back through that darkness, Will,
To a farm-house on a New Hampshire hill.
I could see the pine boughs wave to and fro,
As they did that Spring sixty years ago.
Once again I stood by the old well sweep,
Or with brothers clambered some rocky steep;
Ah! my hours were so carelessly happy then,
I could wish they really had come again.

Well, the years flew by, and I was a bride,
I had ceased to play on the mountain side,
Or to search for ivy leaves under the snow,
Where in Summer time the blueberries grow;
For we sought a home that was new and strange,
On the prairie lands of the huntsman's range,
And we stretched our farms towards the setting sun,
Many miles from where life was first begun.

But the times have changed since that ancient day,
And the olden customs have passed away;
Now the steam-cars rush o'er the Indian's track,
And the hills no more send his war-whoop back;
The wild deer and buffalo all have fled;
Stately buildings rise o'er the pioneer dead,
Noble cities spring from the fertile soil,
And the still woods ring with the strokes of toil.

You have seen the grave of your grandsire, Will,
And your Uncle Charles, on yon rugged hill:
O'er their gravesides now budding branches wave,
Where the robins nest—fit home—for the brave.
But your father sleeps on a Southern shore,
Where the Gulf waves echo their sullen roar;
His heart never entered a colder tomb
Than the one that beat 'neath his coat of blue.

I can live to-night in the past alone,
And both time and death seem as things unknown;
Now I bask in infancy's rosy beams,
Or once more I revel in girlhood's dreams;
Then with heart all gladness and lightness come
To begin my life in a Western home,
And like many an old life have I gained or lost
As they touch the shores of the "long ago."

AURAMANIA,
OR
"DIAMOND'S" DAUGHTER.

A Story of Thrilling Interest, Powerful Effects, and Exciting Situations.

BY MISS JOHANNA PRITCHARD.

Entered according to act of Congress in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.
[Miss Pritchard has dramatized this work, and is performing it in her engagements throughout the country.]

CHAPTER XXVII.—CONTINUED.

"Fool! fool!" she cried. "Who am I, what am I, that my breast should be filled with this cowardly pride? Ah, who am I that I should shiver at the idea of going out into the cold world, shiver at the thought of wandering in the dust, of going forth into the poverty and degradation whence I sprang? Who am I? What am I? A maniac, a maniac!"

She laughed—hollow and fearful laugh, which issued from mad people's lips alone. Then, with a burst of anguish that no language can express, she turned to fly, for she saw on all sides the guests approaching. Escape was impossible. Whichever way she rushed, the astonished aristocrats bowed low to this peerless beauty, this wondrous girl, this insane creature, who with a mighty effort struggled to subdue the madness creeping slowly through her tottering brain. She had wrestled with it before and conquered. Now she grew calmer and bowed with a strange and trembling smile upon her lips, while her eyes watched anxiously for the approach of Maurice. If she could only reach her home safely, on the morrow she would be far away. Her face grew paler and paler, her heart beat louder and louder as her eyes gazed fearfully around, fearing to see the one thing in the world she dreaded. She was still safe—he was not there. Her heart bounded with hope. As she saw her beloved turning toward her, she flew to meet him, but fell back like one struck with death, white as a corpse, immovable as a statue.

"Auramania!" burst from the lips of the astonished detective, who had waited and lingered around for an opportunity to see the beautiful Florence De Corse. Now was he, too, struck dumb, on beholding the workhouse girl. Was he dreaming? he asked himself, as he looked into her face and found that the matchless Florence De Corse, who for two years had reigned the belle of London, who had refused the offers of lords and dukes, who bore a spotless name, whose wealth and ancestry were undoubted—could she be Auramania the thief? Yes, it was she! There she stood, her white face, her wild eyes, her brown silken hair. She stood as of old—except her gorgeous robes, her sparkling diamonds. What did it all mean? Was she the secret mistress of a prince? How had she-devil managed it? A few hours ago she was in a den of thieves. Could she have followed his steps? What could it all mean? It would never do to betray her. She was the granddaughter to the lord in whose very house she stood; she had wealth and friends now. What could he do? He could not arrest her, for he would lose all. Perhaps she knew that it was he who had imprisoned Maurice Strafford in the vault. Great Heaven! he was in her power at last. He must humble himself —there was no alternative. Swift as the wind rushed these thoughts through Wallis Graham, as he stood cold and trembling before the wretched girl.

"Auramania!" was all he had uttered.

"Auramania!" echoed the astonished guests.

"Aye, Auramania!" she cried in a voice of heartrending anguish, which spoke years of silent suffering, a voice in which hope had fled forever. It was the voice of one who saw no future, no life before her, and who resigned herself to her inevitable fate. The paralyzed lord looked upon her and knew that she was his grandchild. Florence De Corse his daughter's child! What mystery was this?" The detective had called her Auramania. It was the workhouse girl. How came she by that name, and by her wealth? Even in that moment of confusion his aristocratic pride was aroused. He looked around the assemblage and already fancied he saw their jeering smiles as he acknowledged this woman to be his granddaughter; so he kept the secret and coldly exclaimed:

"Woman, what are you?"

"A frantic woman!" burst wildly from her lips, while her eyes never moved from off the fiend who stood humbly before her.

"Who are you?" he repeated, while his white lips trembled.

"I am Auramania—a workhouse girl, a thief who has served her time in jail, a convict! This, this, is what I am." Crushed and broken, she wailed out the horrible truth, and then wept before the whole world, humbled, without pride. Pity for the creature, who stood so wondrously lovely in all her misery, entered their breasts. Suddenly she raised her bowed head and pointed at the detective, who had fallen at her feet.

"Look upon this abject wretch," she cried with bitterness, "who grovels in the dust at my feet! He was my master. He made me what I am."

"I, Auramania?" quailed the great man.

"When my eyes first saw the light, this fiend claimed me for his prey. He taught me to lie, that he might lacerate my tender flesh; to steal, that he might imprison me. From an innocent child he tortured my weary life—trampled, trod upon me like a dog—hunted me like a wild beast."

"I, Auramania?"

"Every tear my burning eyes ever shed, every pang my wretched life has endured, despairing thoughts, acts of sin, tortured hours, weary days and sleepless nights, the silent agony of remorse for a knife I put to his throat!"

Maddened with the conviction of her words, she sprang toward him, while her eyes once again, as they had done years ago, glared upon him. Her hands clutched the empty air, her breast heaved, and back again came the spirit of old.

"Monster!" she hissed between her clenched teeth, "are you satisfied with your work? You have found me. Go, lead the way! Drag me back to the prison in which you buried me for ten years! Quick, quick! Out with your whip, and lash my tender flesh. Well, you are silent. Ha! ha! you think you can humble me yet? Never! The sight of you brings back the old spirit within me, and while one spark of life remains, Auramania still defies you!"

She stood erect, madness gleamed from her eyes, she pushed back one who thirsted for blood, and the horrified crowd shrank with fear, and Jack Bennett crouched lower and lower. The almost crazed lord flung up his arms and cried:

"Evangeline, Evangeline! is this wretched girl thy child?"

Evangeline! There was a fatal magnetism in that name. It brought back to life the dying Raphael, who appeared upon the scene like a spectre of death, sending a thrill of horror through the frightened guests.

"Evangeline! Evangeline!" shrieked the man, as he staggered into their midst. But the white face and the glittering diamonds of his child paralyzed him. He saw not the brown silken hair—twas the white face, the glaring eyes of his murdered wife, and there upon her breast she carried the stolen wealth. With a shriek which rang through the mansion, he pointed his skeleton finger at his unknown offspring:

"Look there! look there!" he screamed. "There, upon her jeweled Breast, are my diamonds. Ha! ha! ha!" he laughed, "did you come from your grave to rob me of my gold?" Even in that hour the thought of what he had suffered for the loss of his gold struck through his wandering brain. "Thief! give me back my jewels!" he shrieked; and with the roused strength of a dying man he sprang upon her tearing the jewels from her hair and breast. "My diamonds, or your life!"

"Off, off! madman!" the girl cried, as she recoiled, he clinging with a deadly hold upon her velvet robe.

The guests, pale, rooted to the floor, with consternation, exclaimed with one voice: "He's mad, he's mad! Drag him off!"

"Never, never!" shrieked the miser, as he coiled himself around her with a death-grip.

"When my eyes first saw the light, this fiend claimed me for his prey. He taught me to lie, that he might lacerate my tender flesh; to steal, that he might imprison me. From an innocent child he tortured my weary life—trampled, trod upon me like a dog—hunted me like a wild beast."

AQUATICS.

THE SARATOGA REGATTA.

Judging from present indications, the amateur regatta which a number of influential gentlemen have arranged to take place upon that admirable sheet of water, Saratoga Lake, on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 11 and 12, is destined to equal, if not excel, any similar event which has taken place upon American waters for years. The several races will be open to members of all regularly-organized amateur rowing clubs in the States and Canadian provinces, and the programme includes four events, viz.: Pair-oared shells, single sculls, double sculls and four-oared boats, two races to come off upon each day. Each race will be free, but an entrance fee of $20 will be required at the time of entering, as an evidence of good faith, to be returned if the boat draws into line. A prize will be awarded each of the winners in a race, including the grand champion challenge cups for four-oared boats and single sculls. The distance to be pulled in the single and double scull and pair-oared races will be two miles, with a turn; for four-oared boats, three miles, with a turn. The prizes amount in value to $3,000. The association will provide transportation for boats and crews from the Saratoga Railroad Station to the lake and return, free of expense, and will make arrangements to furnish all contestants with return tickets to their homes, free, boats included. Upon application, they will also attend to securing good and reasonable accommodations for crews, in advance of their arrival, either at the lake or in Saratoga, and will arrange for a moderate and uniform rate of fare to the lake in public conveyances. They will have a committee in daily attendance at the lake, to attend to any requirements that may be needed by contestants. In short, the association will exercise the utmost vigilance to see that extortion (which is not a characteristic of Saratoga) is practiced nowhere within their juriadiction. Individuals or crews entering must forward a certificate, properly authenticated, containing their name or names; name and location of club to which they belong; name of boat and class, dimensions and builder; colors, and copy of their club by-laws, if printed. No member of a club will be allowed to compete unless his membership dates in such club previous to July 1, 1873.

Amateurs only will be allowed to row. The association defines an amateur to be a person who has never rowed in regattas unrestricted or open to all comers, and who has not rowed for money, or has not been willing to be matched to row for money, since May 1, 1872, and who is a member of a regularly-organized amateur rowing club, and has not been engaged to train any person or crew, for any compensation whatsoever. Certainly a better course than that afforded by Saratoga Lake it is scarcely possible to find in this country. Aside from being rendered most attractive by its surroundings, it has a clear, unobstructed rowing course, in a straight line, five miles long by one mile broad, without current; accessible by a broad, handsome, macadamized road, four miles in length and well watered at all times, making a very pleasant drive. Those who have taken the matter in hand are in thorough earnest; and as they evince a determination to carry out their plans and fulfill all their promises, it is to be hoped that amateurs everywhere will do all in their power to encourage the success of the undertaking. The regatta will be governed by the rules of boat-racing adopted by the National Convention of Amateur Oarsmen. The names of the gentlemen composing the committees having the affair in charge are as follows: Regatta—W. A. Hamilton, J. W. Kimball, Benjamin F. Brady, J. B. Finlay, W. A. Coster and Henry Leslie. Reception—C. F. Southgate, George W. Smith, M. W. Jarvison, C. M. Main and George H. Mitchell. Qualification—W. H. Bocker, W. A. Hamilton and W. A. Coster. Transportation of Crews—H. A. Van Dorn, C. E. Benedict, John Campbell, James H. Breslin and Hon. James M. Marvin. Printing and Advertising—J. C. Shepherd, W. A. Patterson and Charles E. Leland. Public Conveyances—C. W. Shepherd, Major W. W. Leland and Hon. H. H. Hathorn. Finance—George L. Ames, Judge C. S. Lester and J. H. White.

HARRY KELLY vs. JAMES TAYLOR.

An Easy Victory for Kelley.

From our latest foreign files we learn that, contrary to the announcement made per cable, the great scullers' race on the Tyne, Eng., between Harry Kelley and James Taylor, for £200 a side, which came off on July 28, was won very easily by the first named. The course was straightaway, from High Level to Scotswood Suspension bridge, 3 miles 713 yards. Kelley was trained by James Percy, while Taylor did his training in company with Bob Bagnall (also matched with Harry). The Sporting Life thus describes the race and the scene upon the river:

Not during the last five or six years have we seen so great a crowd as is to be found on the northern river. The people of Newcastle and Gateshead, of Shields and Sunderland, turned out in their thousands and tens of thousands—men, women and children. The High Level Bridge, where the start was to take place, was crowded from the roadway to the highest pitch of the girders; the temporary low bridge, which we almost despair of seeing supplanted by the more ambitious structures which has been in progress for so many years, was covered from end to end; the supremely ugly bridge at the Redheugh, where Bob Cooper still so maintains his ferry, had on it a dense mass of humanity. The townspeople crowded every wharf, as far as wharfs extended, and then swarmed over the alternate steep banks and level meadows on each side of the river; so that from end to end of the course there was one continuous roar whilst the contest lasted. It was soon very plainly to be seen who was the popular favorite. It was just half-past five when Kelley was seen putting off from Boyd's boat-house, at the Gateshead side, and then there arose a cheer from the folk on the bridges, which was echoed again and again far up the stream. Taylor put off from the "bunting" at the Mansion-house Quay, and had almost reached the middle of the river before he was recognized. Then his reception was by no means an enthusiastic one, a proof of how Kelley, always a favorite, even when he beat "Bob Chambers," has become naturalized in the metropolis of the North. The westerly breeze was now blowing strong, and there was every indication that whoever was to win the race would have all his work cut out. Kelley was lucky enough to win the station on a day when the north side was decidedly most advantageous, and this caused him to be still more fancied, odds of over 2 to 1 being offered. There was no fiddling about the start. The men were to go by mutual consent, and almost as soon as they had doffed caps and jerseys they were gliding off on perfectly even terms, with eight or nine steamers, heavily laden, after them. Taylor at once put on his very best pace—quite forty strokes to the minute—and after the first half-dozen strokes his boat's nose was in front. He kept at it in the same style which has earned him the reputation of being one of the quickest starters ever seen, whilst Kelley did not seem to settle well down to his work at first, and the consequence was that, after going only 150 yards, Taylor was leading by quite half a length. At the Mansion-house Quay he had increased his advantage to three-quarters of a length, but here he caught the wind dead against him, and was rowing in very lumpy water, to which Kelley's style was much the better adapted. In fact, the "old man" was rowing splendidly, and one of his most prominent Newcastle backers—one who has stuck to him through good and evil report, almost as much as his most prominent London supporter, whose name we need not mention—was willing to lay any odds on him. A quarter of a mile from the start Taylor was leading by only a quarter of a length, and rowing rather short, whilst his opponent was in full swing and going in magnificent style. At the Skinner's Burn, where so many great races have been decided, the veteran came up hand over hand, and for the first time took a slight lead, notwithstanding that he had lost ground by going too far inshore. Six hundred yards from the High Level, Kelley, quickening his stroke, had a quarter of a length the best of it, and now there were abundant offers to lay 30 to 10 on him. The men were now approaching the Redheugh Bridge (half a mile), and as they had started very close and rowed very close together throughout, great anxiety was manifested as to whether should be foul. It seemed at one time as if Kelley was about to take the inside, but, finding it impossible to do so without risk, he pulled his left hand out and made for the second arch, all the time getting farther away from the other man. He had not time to get clear before Taylor, putting on a tremendous spurt, just managed to sneak through, and both men stopped. Great excitement now prevailed, as it was evident that the race would be decided on the foul, and little attention was given to the subsequent rowing, which was decidedly uninteresting, as Kelley, maintaining the good form into which he had settled soon after starting, was rapidly increasing his advantage, so that at a mile he had quite four lengths the best of it. Opposite the Elswick Ordnance Works Kelley steered very wide, but, notwithstanding this, Taylor, who now appeared decidedly "baked," was unable to gain to any perceptible extent, and the leader again getting away, and keeping it on hard, got farther and farther away. Eventually Kelley won by 120 yards in 29min. 3sec.—not at all bad time, considering the state of the water, and that the wind was dead against the scullers all the way. Both appealed to the umpire on the foul, and the decision was at once given in favor of Kelley.

DOGGETT'S COAT AND BADGE.

On Friday evening, August 1, the annual competition for the coat and badge bequeathed by Thos. Doggett took place on the Thames, Eng., from the Old Swan at London Bridge to the Old Swan at Chelsea. The competitors were watermen in the last year of their apprenticeship, and the prizes were as follows: First, the coat and badge, with 6gs. added; second, 5gs.; third, 3gs.; fourth, 2gs.; fifth, £1 11s. 6d.; sixth, £1 6s.; provided they row the whole of the distance, and subject to the conditions enforced in previous years. The starters were H. G. Measum, G. Tarryer, T. W. Christopher, E. Manning, B. Buttery and G. Beatty, and they were disposed of in the usual excellent start, Manning showing slightly in front, Measum second, Buttery third and Tarryer fourth. At the Cannon-street Railway Bridge, Measum had taken the foremost position, and Manning, soon afterwards fouling a barge, was passed in turn by Tarryer and Buttery. At Blackfriars, Measum was well in front, Buttery second, Tarryer third, Manning fourth, the representative of Battersea being thus early in the race swamped. Going under Waterloo Bridge, Measum led by three lengths from Tarryer, who was second, a couple of lengths in advance of the other three, Manning, Christopher, and Buttery, who were almost level. Steering a very good course, the above bridge representative gradually increased his lead, and off Hungerford pier was ten lengths to the good, Tarryer still second, and Manning third, the other pair, three lengths in the rear, being hard at it, almost scull to scull, until reaching Westminster Bridge, when Christopher made much the better progress through the lumpy water, and, despite the fact that both he and Buttery were nearly swamped by a tug, at Vauxhall rapidly drew upon Manning, the Long Ditton representative falling very rapidly in the rear, and ceasing to struggle. The actual result had long ere this been palpably in favor of Measum, who, increasing his lead to the last fish, won very easily by 100 yards from Tarryer. Meanwhile a magnificent race was taking place between Christopher and Manning, the latter being about two lengths clear of the Limehouse sculler, and even money was laid that the latter would gain third place. Gradually Christopher drew upon the Lambeth man, and, catching him in the last half-dozen lengths, scored third place very cleverly by half a length, being 200 yards in the rear of the second. Taking his own time, Buttery completed the distance for fifth money about a quarter of a mile behind Manning. The winner's time was 37min. 27sec., nearly a minute quicker than last year.

THE SCOTT PRIZE is to be competed for by Albany (N. Y.) oarsmen on Aug. 25. The contestants must be under twenty-one years old, and the race is to take place in the working-boats of the city. Each of the victorious pair will receive a gold badge, presented by Tom Scott. Four entries have been made.

THE SOUTH BOSTON YACHT CLUB held the second of a series of three regattas for champion prizes on Aug. 13. There were nine starters—three in each class—and the winning vessels were as follows: first class, Kelpie; second, Ripple; third, Maud. The closing regatta takes place on Sept. 11.

THE THIRD REGATTA of the Beverly Yacht Club this season came off at Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 12. There were thirteen contestants in all, and the winners were as follows: 1st class sloops, Surf; catrigged, Fire-Fly; 3d class, Peri; 3d class, Tulip.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP of the New Dominion Rowing Club was competed for on the bay of Toronto, Can., Aug. 9, and was won by Robert Tinning; G. M. Donnelly second, James Tesdale third.

THE FENTON-GERVIN MATCH, which was to have been decided at Troy, N. Y., fell through in consequence of the withdrawal of the former

BASEBALL.

ATLANTIC vs. IRVINGTON.

The contest between these clubs—the second they have played together this season—on Aug. 12 proved to be the best display shown by the Irvingtons since their reorganization. They had another of the Resolutes on their nine in the person of A. Arthur Allison, who played well as catcher to Hugh Campbell's pitching. Of course he had no legal right to play, but the Irvington nine do not claim to be legally in the arena this season, as they are only experimenting prior to next season's play. Stockman and Crawford played finely in their positions, as did Burdock in his. The interest in the match centred in the effort of the Atlantics to win in two innings' play—that is, to exceed their opponents' total score by the score of two of their own innings. This they only succeeded in doing in the last inning. The score below gives the details:

BALTIMORE vs. MUTUAL.

Although the weather was threatening, so great was the interest felt in the match between the New York Mutuals and the Baltimore (Md.) Club that over one thousand persons assembled upon the grounds of the latter, at Newington Park, on Tuesday, Aug. 12, to witness the contest. Each nine played well, the game being especially noteworthy for excellent pitching and fielding, Radcliff and Hatfield in particular covering themselves with glory. The score follows:

EASTON vs. NASSAU.

On Aug. 11, the Nassau Club of Brooklyn visited Easton, Pa., to play the noted club of that city, and after a close contest came off the victors. The pitching of Cassidy and catching of Bunce was excellent. Bunce did well at second. Rogers at centre-field caught the splendid flies of the Eastons. Battin's third-base and Abadie's first-base play was very good, Wadsworth's (late of the Resolutes) short-stop play being the feature of the game. Miller caught well. The Nassaus returned much elated with their victory. The score:

The playing of Wadsworth in the Easton nine forfeits all games the Eastons play with him in their nine until October 7, for on the 7th of August he played in the Resolute nine.

COTTON vs. PRODUCE.

A game was played on the Capitoline Grounds, Brooklyn, L. I., Aug. 22, between the N. Y. Cotton Exchange and the N. Y. Produce Exchange nines. On account of darkness the game was called at the end of the seventh inning. The Produce men did the best batting, but were outfielded by their opponents. The following is the score:

NAVY OFFICERS TOSSING THE BALL IN CHINA.

A game of ball, the score of which we append, was played by officers of the American fleet on the Asiatic squadron, at Shanghae, China, during the latter part of June. None of those participating had seen a ball for several years, and, considering that the one used was of the liveliest description, the game was a very good one:

SHORT STOPS.

The return game between the Staten Island and Arlington Clubs was played upon the former's ground Aug. 16, resulting in the latter winning by 20 runs....The Island players were minus the services of Beavan, Sprague, Worth, Dollard, Jackson, Clyne and Armstrong, and the substitutes being far below them in point of ability, the Arlingtons won by a score of 30 to 13.....On Aug. 5, the John M. Lafferty Club administered a thrashing to the West Philadelphias at Oakdale Park, in the Quaker City; score, 23 to 18, five innings.....The figures in a match between the Athletics and Marions of the metropolis, played at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, August 8, were 62 to 9 in favor of the former.....A game between the Flor de Cuba and Cockatoo Clubs, played at Philadelphia, Aug. 6, resulted in favor of the former—22 to 12....The Jaspers were polished off by the Olympics at Manhattanville, N. Y., Aug. 8; score, 18 to 3.....A one-sided game was played by the Flyaway and Amateur Clubs of this city on the 6th, the former scoring 23 to 2.....The Amity and Olympic Clubs contended for the amateur championship of New York State on the Capitoline Grounds, Brooklyn, Aug. 1, the first-named scoring 12 to 9.....The Philadelphia Club defeated the Bachelors at Philadelphia Aug. 6; score, 39 to 7.....The King Philips waxed the Chelseas in the third game of a junior championship series played at Boston, Mass., Aug 9; by a score of 16 to 7.....By heavy batting the Unions of Newark vanquished the New York Flyaways at the former place Aug. 9; score, 16 to 8.....During a recent game between the Clintons of Wilmington and the Xenias of Xenia, O., Charley Curl, catcher of the former (having played in that position in every game in which the Clintons have engaged since 1867, we believe), had the misfortune to dislocate his right shoulder. It became necessary to administer chloroform before the dislocation could be reduced.....The second game between the Chelseas and Beacons for the amateur championship of Massachusetts was played on Boston, Aug. 2, the former winning by a score of 11 to 8.....On Aug. 2 the Staten Island Club visited Orange, N. J., and there encountered the Oneidas, by whom they were conquered; score, 33 to 25.....The Somerseta beat the Prospects at Prospect Park, L. I., Aug. 8, the figures being 17 to 11.....The Confidence Club waxed the Stars of New York, at New Rochelle, N. Y., August 2, scoring 21 to 7.....The Liberals and Toughs, two nines belonging to the Linwood Club, a flourishing up-town social organization, played a game at the Elysian Fields, Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 1, the Liberals winning by a count of 37 to 31.....The Shamrocks defeated a picked nine in a game contested at Camp McDowell, in the far West, July 4; score 6 to 5.....The Social Club of Morris Run took the Modocs of Canton, Pa., into camp, Aug. 8; score, 14 to 5.....The Eurekas of Providence, Pa., were warmed by the White Oaks of Archibald on the 5th inst.; totals, 23 to 17.....A tussle took place at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Aug. 7, between the Argus Club of that place and the Iowa City nine, in which the former were worsted, the score standing 25 to 22.....A severe castigation was administered to the St. Lawrence Club of Kingston, Canada, by the Maple Leaf of Guelph, Aug. 11; score, 36 to 3. On the preceding Saturday the Kingston boys had to succumb to the Dauntless of Toronto, after a fine contest, the score of which was 7 to 2.....The following amatuer games were played at Brooklyn, L. I., on the dates mentioned: Aug. 8—Chelsea beat Union, 11 to 7; Excelsior beat Warner, 28 to 13; Rosedale beat Modoc, 24 to 11; Aug. 9—Bully Boys beat Adam, 17 to 8.

DULLNESS IN AUGUST.—The local championship matches will scarcely average two a week for the month in important contests, and things are much the same in other cities. The out-of-town races have drawn off the "sports," who do the betting on the ball field, and there are few others in town who patronize the game here in August. The Bostons and Philadelphias visit Chicago and Canada this month, and the Mutuals will go out of town. By September, however, there will be quite a revival, and then we shall see which club will be likely to be second. Thus far Philadelphia has the winning lead, and the Baltimores are going in strong for second, the New York clubs being fifth and sixth in the race.

THE TURF.

UTICA PARK MEETING.

FIRST DAY, TUESDAY, AUGUST 12.

STEWART MALONEY WINS THE 2:34 PURSE, GLOSTER THE 2:27.

The second annual trotting meeting of the Utica (N. Y.) Park Association was held during the past week. The opening took place on the 12th, upon which date the weather unfortunately proved inauspicious, heavy masses of dark clouds portending rain, which commenced to fall about four o'clock, continuing until the day's sport was brought to a close, and greatly marring the enjoyment of the thousands who, despite the threatening aspect overhead, had gone to the track. The week's sport was inaugurated by a race for 2:34 horses, for a purse of $4,000, which had ten entries, viz.: Stewart Maloney, Barney Kelley, Brown Bashaw, Bay Henry, Idol Girl, Zilcadie Golddust, Manhattan, Fearnaught, Jr., Arthur and Walter. The three last named were withdrawn. Manhattan showed in front at the send-off, but in going around the turn Bay Henry passed him, shortly after which they simultaneously broke, Manhattan running by Henry, who fell to the rear, Kelley holding second place and Maloney third at the quarter pole. These positions were maintained past the half-mile pole, Manhattan and Kelley having in the meantime left their feet and done some running. Maloney passed the latter on the next quarter and at the three-quarter pole was a length behind Manhattan, who kept in the van by running, going first over the score, but being set back to the last position, while Kelley was awarded the heat. Time, 2:32. Kelley got a length the best of the start for the second heat, Maloney second, Golddust next. So they trotted to the quarter pole, where Kelley led by half a length only, and just after entering the next quarter Golddust broke-up badly and was supplanted by Henry in the third position. Maloney now got upon even terms with Kelley, and they went along hand and hand until half-way up the homestretch, when Barney was carried off his feet and fell to the rear, Maloney winning the heat, with Henry second. Time, 2:34. The two following heats were easily taken by Maloney, who led from the first turn in each, winning the first by two lengths in 2:33¾, and the second by four lengths in 2:37. Summary:

UTICA (N. Y.) PARK ASSOCIATION MEETING.—First day, Aug. 12, 1873.—Purse $4,000; for horses that never beat 2:34; mile heats, best three in five, in harness; $2,000 to the first, $1,000 to the second, $600 to the third and $400 to the fourth horse.

Horses that could not be fasterthan 2:27 now contended for a purse of $5,000, the following nags answering the summons of the starter: Gloster, J. G. Brown, Blanche, St. James, Parkes' Abdallah, Joe Brown, Lucille Golddust and Comee. Nettie, Castle Boy and Redwing were withdrawn. A miserable send-off was obtained, Joe Brown leading Blanche a length, a quarter pole, Golddust third and Abdallah fourth. Brown and Blanche were head-and-head after going half the distance, but Gloster was gradually but certainly gaining upon them, and after passing the three-quarter pole he showed the pair his heels, trotting grandly up the stretch and winning the heat, Blanche second. Time, 2:23¾. It is unnecessary to describe the two succeeding heats, as in each Gloster, who was now a rattling favorite, led from the fall of the flag, winning by two lengths. Time, 2:24¾. At the termination of the second heat the driver of Joe Brown, who came in second, was fined $50 for striking Golddust over the head with his whip, and the horse was put back to the last place. Summary:

SAME DAY.—Purse of $5,000, for horses that never beat 2:27; mile heats, best three in five, in harness: $2,500 to the first, $1,250 to the second, $750 to the third and $500 to the fourth horse.

SECOND DAY, FRIDAY, AUG. 15.

JUDGE FULLERTON WINS THE 2:21 PURSE, CLEMENTINE THE 2:50.

Rain fell heavily during the night of the 12th inst., continuing at intervals through the two following days and necessitating a postponement of the races set down for those dates. The 15th opened gloomily, and during the morning several showers fell; but as many of the animals entered for the races had to leave for Springfield, Mass., it was determined to continue the sport. Fortunately, the clouds broke away shortly after noon, the sun shone brightly forth, and people began to wend their way to the Park. A larger number were in attendance than upon the inaugural day, and the track, though showing the effects of the heavy rains, was in passible condition. At three o'clock the horses entered for the 2:21 purse, $6,000, were called to the post, those who responded being Judge Fullerton, Camors, Nettie, Goldsmith and Comedian, Gloster was withdrawn. Fullerton sold in the pools for $132, Camors $100, the field $32. After scoring thrice they were sent away evenly, the favorite at once taking the lead, which he was never deprived of, winning by a length and a half. Time, 2:22. Sensation, who had recently well-nigh won the preceding heat, got off first in the second, Camors next, Golddust third, and Fullerton last. The latter, however, was ahead at the quarter, and kept there throughout, winning by two lengths. Sensation and Camors passed the three-quarter pole head-and-head, but just afterwards the former broke up and swung out of his position. Time, 2:23½. The Judge led at the start in the next heat, but going around the turn fell nearly a dozen lengths behind, Camors leading at the quarter, with Sensation second. After the favorite settled down he rapidly closed the gap opened between him and Golddust, and passed Sensation, but was unable to reach Camors, who took the heat by a couple of lengths in 2:23¾. The fourth heat was very similar to the preceding one, Fullerton breaking and dropping a long way behind, but regaining the lead at the three-quarter pole, where he went by Camors like a flash, winning by three lengths in 2:25¼. Summary:

SECOND DAY, Aug. 15.—Purse $6,000, for horses that had never beaten 2:21; $3,000 to first, $1,500 to second, $900 to third, $600 to fourth.

The next race was for 2:50 horses, for a purse of $2,500, and had nine starters, viz.: Clementine, Continental, Magnolia, Vanity Fair, Little Longfellow, Lew Ives, Voltaire, Planter and Lizzie Keeler. Royal George, Jr., was withdrawn. This race does not require description, as Clementine won easily in three straight heats. Summary:

INTRODUCTORY OVERTURE.

MONDAY, Aug. 18, '73.

"The players be come." Yes, and the players be going, too. Each Atlantic steamer westward bound brings its quota of Thespians who have been doing the continent of Europe; while each outgoing train carries away numerous actors and actresses who are about to enter upon the fulfilment of their professional contracts for the season of 1873-4. Already a number of theatres have commenced operations, and by the first week in September nearly all will be in harness. In this city several establishments have thrown open their doors in the endeavor to force the season, but sufficient time has not yet elapsed to give any proper indication of what the results are to be. Emulating the enterprising style of our dailies, we detailed an imaginary reporter to interview an equally imaginary old stager, a few days ago, and this is what they said to each other in imagination:

Reporter.—Mr. Bismarc, having understood that your experience on the stage has been very extensive, I have called to obtain your views concerning the coming season, and, more particularly, your opinion of the various entertainments to be provided, and their prospects of success.

Old Stager.—Ah! indeed. I am glad to see you. What paper do you represent?

Rep.—THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, the greatest paper on the face of the globe, and whose circulation takes in the universe; a paper, the—

Old S.—Enough, sir—THE CLIPPER's well-known independence, enterprise and reliability, are sufficient to ensure a welcome to its representatives in every quarter; so I am happy to answer any such questions as you may submit to me—that is, to answer them as far as it may be in my power to do so.

Rep.—Mr. Bismarc, I understand that "The Black Crook" is to be revived at Niblo's. Do you think it will succeed?

Old S.—Well, that depends; you see, Mr. CLIPPER, "The Black Crook," as a play, amounts to but very little. Were we to see it just as it was presented last season, I should have no hesitation in predicting that it is financial success; but to invest in the auxillaries with extraordinary interest and beauty, and as the leg will form one of its most salient features, the chances are favorable for a good season. You see, sir, the press may decry the charms of the ballet, the public may affect to frown upon the exposure of female limbs and busts, and the pulpit may hurl its shafts at the "indecency of the drama;" nevertheless the greater and more lavish the exposure of the works of animated nature the greater will be the rush to the opera, the ballet and the pulpit, to see and enjoy these resplendent pictures.

Rep.—You don't mean to say that the pulpit is represented at the theatre?

Old S.—Indeed I do, sir. Why, there is not a play presented that is not witnessed by some members of the clergy.

Rep.—Just as we see them in their pulpits?

Old S.—Oh, no! I don't say that. They come disguised—as gentlemen, or commercial travelers, or something of that.

Rep.—But suppose they are detected, their disguise penetrated, what then?

Old S.—Then they would say that it is their duty to see the wicked side of life so that they may the more surely point a moral for the edification of their flocks. Why, sir, when I was on at Niblo's, last season, I actually saw, at different times, three dispensers of the gospel truths in conversation with certain ballet girls just as they came from before the public gaze. You may wonder at my knowledge of these facts, but when I assure you that I am a regular attendant of places of worship in a professional capacity as singer, you need express no surprise on the subject.

Rep.—What about Wallack's?

Old S.—The once "model theatre of America" is such no longer. When we had such people as Mrs. Hoey, Mrs. Vernon, Mary Gannon, Rufus Blake, George Holland, and other kindred spirits, to interpret the dialogue of the plays so beautifully placed upon the stage of that establishment, Wallack's was a theatre that New York could well afford to be proud of, and to point to as a model temple of the drama. But the glory of that house has fled, its people dead, or distributed among other companies, and the recollection of its once brilliant career is all that is left to us.

Rep.—But it certainly holds a high place in public estimation, doesn't it?

Old S.—Not the place it once held. You see, the theatre has been allowed to run down—its management has run down, its company run down, its audience run down, and the elegance it once presented is seen no more.

Rep.—How do you account for these changes?

Old S.—There are various causes. Other managers have entered the field—managers possessing the go-ahead spirit of the age, with minds to conceive, and energies to carry out great enterprises; men of liberal ideas and creative ability.

Rep.—Who are these men?

Old S.—Augustin Daly is one—he is no actor, but he is a worker. He graduated from the press school, and the knowledge he gained therein as a theatrical critic has enabled him to become one of the most successful managers in this city, and that, too, almost from the very start.

Rep.—To what do you attribute this success?

Old S.—To many things. In the first place he will have the best of everything. He surrounds himself with a strong corps of talented performers—in addition to those he brings to the notice of the public, he also has a number held in reserve for emergencies, or to send out on starring campaigns; he engages the best people for long terms—they draw their salary whether they act or not.

Rep.—But is not this very expensive?

Old S.—It is, most certainly; but, like virtue, it brings its own reward. And then see the magnificent manner in which he mounts his plays. His set scenes are perfect gems of elegance and taste.

Rep.—But are not certain of his plays open to censure? Are not their tendencies immoral?

Old S.—Who is to say what is moral or otherwise in these latter days? They are censured, it is true; they are condemned by certain self-styled advocates of moral reform, and their immoralities dissected in such a skilful manner as to warrant the assumption that the dissector has been through the mill in all its grades. But all this, instead of operating upon the moral susceptibilities of the people, only helps to call their attention to something that is sure to interest and amuse them, and they crowd the theatre at each representation; and, like children who have had a taste of something good, they cry for more.

Rep.—I see that Lydia Thompson is with us again. Do you believe she will repeat the successes of the past?

Old S.—Why not? Lydia is one of the most industrious, most hard-working women that ever trod the boards. She is a host in herself. She never stands still. She has brought with her from Europe some new people, and as she understands our tastes pretty well I have no doubt they will become popular.

Rep.—But hasn't she lost some of the best people of her last season's troupe?

Old S.—A few. So in her second season she lost some of her first troupe. The stately and sculpturesque Markham cheered it, the clever actress Lisa Weber resigned for cause; and the lovely Ada Harlan flew the track, as you may remember. But Lydia wept not, neither did she swoon. She engaged others, worked the harder herself, and her later seasons have been marvels of success. I look to see her do it again.

Rep.—I understand that Edwin Booth has given up management. Why is this?

Old S.—That mighty edifice wherein the melancholy Edwin was wont to wax eloquent in his delivery of Shakespeare's lines, was too big an elephant on his hands, and he wisely shook it, managing and acting being rather too much for him.

Rep.—Do you think it likely to become popular as a star theatre?

Old S.—Some of the stars engaged to appear there being very popular themselves must attract large houses; but mediocre talent will require the aid of the "paper" hangers to make the auditorium look cheerful and comfortable. I have never thought the Sixth avenue a suitable location for a first-class theatre like Booth's.

Rep.—Why, its close to that fashionable centre, which includes Fifth avenue, Twenty-third, and other cross streets of high calibre, and it seems to me that it is in the right spot for the class of people who reside on those avenues.

Old S.—Yes, but you should understand that were our first-class theatres to depend upon fashionable people for support, very few such houses would hold together. It's the stranger who extends the greater patronage to our theatres. Some ten or twelve thousand strangers visiting the city every day. The bulk of these people travel along the line of our great Broadway. There must be some extraordinary inducement for them to take to the side avenues. Look at the Grand Opera-house over on the Eighth avenue. Where will you find a more beautiful structure? It is unsurpassed, taking it altogether, by any theatre in the world. At least such is the opinion of men who have traveled abroad "strange countries for to see."

Rep.—"And what's its history?"

Old S.—"A blank, my lord." Everything has been tried there, but nothing has succeeded as a success.

Rep.—And why should this be so?

Old S.—The house is planted in the wrong spot. Eighth avenue is like the Bowery, only that more strangers seek the Bowery than they do the Eighth avenue. The people won't go to the Eighth avenue, and the theatre can't come to the people.

Rep.—What do you think of the location of the new theatre at Broadway and Twenty-second street?

Old S.—The site is capital—right in the heart of New York by gaslight.

Rep.—Will it make a success?

Old S.—In the hands of men entirely great, it ought to. But it will require the utmost care and attention on the part of the management. There must be head-work as well as hand-work. It is intended to be a bijou of a place—neat but not gaudy. The best of attractions will have to be offered to insure select and not small audiences.

Rep.—I see that Mr. Boucicault is mentioned as being associated with the management? If so, is this likely to help it?

Old S.—Not unless something else is dovetailed in. Mr. Boucicault's latter days cannot be said to be as productive of happy results for that gentleman as his earlier struggles. The mere name of Boucicault will not stand alone. He must put his shoulder to the wheel, and do some of his old-time work. Probably no man can excel Mr. Boucicault in getting up stage effects. If the gentleman means business, and is well supported in the in-field, the new theatre ought to do well.

Rep.—Will not this house interfere somewhat with Mr. Daly's new theatre at Twenty-eighth street?

Old S.—I cannot see that it should. Mr. Daly will have his own plays, his own popular performers, and his own manner of doing things generally; and he will have his own audiences, that never fail him when his emotional and society plays are translated by the Morris, the Davenport, and the rest of the people who go to make up the dramatis personæ of his happy family.

Rep.—What are your views touching the variety and minstrel establishments?

Old S.—The variety entertainment will continue its popularity just so long as it shall be managed by live men. Novelty is what is needed in the variety theatre. When a troupe is permitted to run itself—when the same old bill is repeated night after night, the treasury must grow weaker, and the end is death. Keep the attractions changing, the entertainment worthy the presence of ladies as well as of the sterner sex—which gives a refining influence to an audience—and there's money in it. That the variety element is popular may be learned from the fact, if from no other reason, that the regular theatres find it necessary to dovetail in a little of it with what is called the legitimate. Variety managers, generally, are remarkably liberal, and spare no expense to secure the best talent.

Rep.—Doesn't the variety interfere with the minstrel stage?

Old S.—I think it does, because the variety business includes burnt cork as well. In fact, some of the best performers in the Ethiopian line may now be found in the variety theatres, the salary paid being much higher than that which the minstrel manager pays. Minstrelsy has not increased in favor within the past three or four years. It will depend upon those at the head of it whether it will advance or recede.

Rep.—I have other questions I should like to ask you; but as I have already taken up much of your time, I shall defer them to a future opportunity.

Old S.—I shall be most happy to impart to you whatever information on the subjects submitted I may be possessed of.

Rep.—For your courtesy and kind consideration, I am under a deep sense of obligation, and in returning thanks I but express the obligations under which you have placed THE CLIPPER and its proprietor.

Old S.—It affords me happiness to serve such a great and growing journal, and I shall be only too glad to see any one from THE CLIPPER establishment.

Rep.—Good day, sir.

Old S.—Au revoir.

CITY SUMMARY.

BOBBY NEWCOMB'S COMBINATION commenced an engagement of six nights at the Bowery Theatre on Aug. 11. The performances opened with an overture by G. F. Hallam and his orchestra, who supplied the place of the popular leader Benj. Dean, and the regular musical organization of the theatre. An act called "The Somnambulist," performed by Andy McKee, Stevie Rogers, T. Atkins and Miss Hardy, followed, supplemented by John Goodman in an act called "The Wonderful Quack Doctor and his Banjo," which met with but indifferent success. Partnership," cleverly acted by Bobby Newcomb as Katrina and Harry Greacon as Hans; Lulu Delmay, with a pretty and petite form, tastefully costumed, in serio-comic songs, frequently redemanded; Smith and Waldron in songs-and-dances fairly performed; Little Fannie Beasley in serio-comic songs, in which she was moderately successful, and Miss Helene Smith in songs-and-dances, rapturously received as she stepped upon the stage and vociferously applauded throughout her performances. Further diversity was given to the entertainment by the production of a sketch of "Martha Mishap," performed by Bobby Newcomb, Andy McKee and T. Atkins. Saidee O'Neil, a miss of tender years, with a light, intelligent countenance, danced a jig, which was redemanded, and she was the recipient of several floral tributes. John Morris sang a song, "Sweet Violets," which took the audience by surprise. A very marked improvement is noticed, both in his singing and dancing. Bobby Newcomb, in songs-and-dances and imitations of operatic artists, met with unqualified success. With few equals in this specialty, it was not surprising that he was recalled until he was compelled to desist from further musical performances, owing to almost absolute exhaustion. Yet, ever anxious to please, he related an anecdote in a professional manager's experience, which elicited loud laughter. Adolph Kemp, a gymnast, then made his metropolitan debut. He is a young man, possessing a shapely, well-knit figure, is agile and graceful in his movements, while his performances evince much daring and skill. He performed feats upon the flying rings, and afterwards upon a trapeze suspended at a giddy height from the upper part of the proscenium. While upon the trapeze he enacted many feats which we have hitherto been accustomed to see in connection with the horizontal bar, such as making rapid revolutions while suspended from the bar of the trapeze by one limb clasped at the knee joint, and afterwards accomplishing the same while the body was extended at full length, both hands grasping the bar. He deserves to take high rank among the gymnasts of the present day. McKee and Rogers gave their well-known grotesque song-and-dance called "Rebecca Jane," which was lavishly applauded. A burlesque of "Mazeppa" closed the performances. The chief characters were in the hands of Miss Helene Smith, who was quite effective in her impersonation of Mazeppa; Miss Marie Le Brun as Olinska, and G. K. Fortescue, who created much merriment by his burlesque acting as Zemila, a waiting maid. On Friday evening Bobby Newcomb received a benefit, when, in addition to those already mentioned, Billy West performed banjo solos, with comic songs interlarded with witty remarks, Hurley and Marr their character specialties, and James Cronie a jig dance. Mr. Newcomb's sensational drama of "A Life's Lesson" was also acted. The attendance during the week was liberal. This evening, Aug. 18, George C. Charles is to commence an engagement, acting in "The Skeleton Hand."

JOSEPH JEFFERSON and William Warren sailed from Liverpool for this city on Aug. 16. Mr. Jefferson will open the season at Booth's Theatre.

W. F. CODY is to commence an engagement at the Bowery Theatre on Aug. 25, acting the title role in "Buffalo Bill."

MR. R. E. STEVENS, agent of the Fifth-avenue Theatre Combination, was presented, on Aug. 15, with a handsome solitaire diamond ring by Col. T. Allston Brown, in whose office he has been employed during the Summer. Mr. Stevens leaves the city the latter part of the week for Cleveland, O., to make arrangements for the appearance of the above combination at Brainard's Opera-house, where they open September 1, for one week.

ROBERT JONES, the veteran stage-manager and dramatist, is in town on a flying visit.

A THEATRE OF PUPPETS OR MARIONETTES is to be opened at Robinson's Hall in Sixteenth street, a few doors from Broadway, on Sept. 8, under the management of John E. McDonough and H. A. Earnshaw. The troupe which has been engaged is well known in England as J. W. Bullock's Royal Marionettes, which had given 300 representations in Liverpool, having previously had an uninterrupted run of four years in Dublin, and over 400 representations at the St. James (large) Hall and Egyptian Hall, London, Eng. They are wooden figures which act comedies, dramas, pantomimes, etc. In the first part they appear as a troupe of negro minstrels; in the second they perform the tricks of the Fantoccini, and in the third the pantomime of "Little Red Riding Hood," complete in every respect, with a fairy prelude, an introduction, a harlequinade and a transformation scene. The scenery, properties, lights, music, tricks and changes are said to be as perfect as in any regular theatre. Although this style of entertainment has been quite popular in England for many years, it will be found novel, and, we think, highly entertaining here. It is likewise free from any objectionable feature. The troupe leaves Liverpool on Aug. 20.

THE FOURTH REVIVAL OF "THE BLACK CROOK" is to inaugurate the regular Fall and Winter season at Niblo's Garden this evening, Aug. 18. It is said that in point of scenic magnificence it will far surpass any previous production. The incantation scene will present many novel effects, including Martin's mechanical head, the flight of Imps, and a dazzling skeleton. The grotto of Stalacta will as hitherto be a prominent feature, and therein will be introduced the bath of the sprites and a fountain of jewels. The Amazonian march will be restored, and will take place upon an illuminated golden staircase, on which the artists have lavished all their skill. Among the incidental attractions will be Felix Regamey, a French caricaturist, who in the presence of the audience draws caricatures of noted individuals upon a white screen with black crayon, and with almost marvelous rapidity; Herr Bernhard Forder, said to be the most remarkable child gymnasts ever seen; a troupe of madrigal boys from London, Eng., and E. D. Davies, the well-known ventriloquist, who will introduce in his entertainment some new mechanical figures. There will be new ballets, including as premieres Mlle. Adele Boni from La Scala, Milan, Italy, and Mlle. Emilia Giavassi from the Grand Theatre, Florence. The Kiraly Troupe will perform a number of their celebrated dances. The spectacle will terminate with Matt. Morgan's allegorical picture, of which we have heretofore spoken.

MISS NELLIE SANFORD was to have commenced an engagement at the Bowery Theatre, this evening, Aug. 18, acting in a new drama entitled "A Life for a Life;" but as the title conflicted with a copyrighted drama, belonging to Miss Eliza Carlton, entitled "A Life for Life," the latter directed her lawyer to notify the interested parties that if the first-named drama was produced she would be compelled to test the matter in the courts. They decided not to produce the drama, and George C. Charles will fill the time with "The Skeleton Hand," instead of Miss Sanford.

RICHARD K. BUTLER, a brother of Robert W. Butler, the well-known variety-theatre manager, died on Aug. 11, on board the steamship Scotia on her voyage to this city from Liverpool, Eng. He was 47 years of age, and had been abroad with the hope of recuperating his health. He was affected with abscess of the liver. The funeral took place from his mother's residence, No. 67 West Ninth street, on Thursday last.

THE FOURTH STREET COMIQUE was opened for the regular season on Monday evening, Aug. 11. The auditorium, concerning the improvements of which we have already written, when seen by gaslight presented a bright and cheerful appearance. The vestibule leading to the street has been ornately and artistically frescoed, the floor covered with cocoa matting having a red border, the box-office freshly painted, new and elegant chandeliers have been put in, and the iron railings regilded. An audience which filled the theatre in every part so densely that hundreds were unable to obtain standing room, was present on the opening night, and during the entire week the theatre was crowded. The performances commenced with "The Somnambulist," acted by Larry Tooley, J. B. Crossen, and J. A. Graver. Dick Ralph, with a banjo solo with song, which was much applauded, and afterwards gave an effective song-and-dance. The Claire Sisters, Minnie and Maggie, gave a contortion act, which compared most favorably with any given by the best male performers. They are supple, agile and graceful. Larry Tooley sang a fresh assortment of his songs, and showed a marked improvement in his profession. A sketch called "Hamlet and His Mother" introduced J. S. Edwards as Hamlet, and H. W. Eagan as Queen Gertrude, and proved to be very entertaining. They possess marked ability. Little Jennie Yeamans, the wonderful juvenile dancer sang and danced, which the artists have lavished all their skill. Among the incidental attractions will be Felix Regamey, a French caricaturist, who in the presence of the audience draws caricatures of noted individuals upon a white screen with black crayon, and with almost marvelous rapidity; Herr Bernhard Forder, said to be the most remarkable child gymnasts ever seen; a troupe of madrigal boys from London, Eng., and E. Eagan as Queen Gertrude, and proved to be very entertaining. They possess marked ability. Little Jennie Yeamans, the wonderful juvenile dancer sang and danced, which met with favor. Bettie and Emily Rigl displayed their terpsichorean skill in an attractive divertisement. Skillful as dancers and costumed with much taste, they won considerable applause, much more, in fact, than is usually the case with the fickle and fastidious patrons of which do not appear to be fond of saltatorial displays, especially when given by the fairer sex. John Williams, in Irish songs-and-dances, won many encores, and deservedly so; and the performances concluded with the burlesque of "Lady Audley's Secret," the character of which remained the following performers: The Misses Blanche, Ella and Belle Chapman, Harry Allen, D. A. Kelley, J. A. Edwards, H. W. Eagan, Larry Tooley, J. A. Graver, John Williams, G. L. Stout, J. F. Crossen, Dick Ralph, Mrs. Minnie Yeamans, the Misses Claire, Miss Bessie Elliott, Jones and Lewis. Miss Belle Chapman, who made her metropolitan debut on the occasion, acting Donna Anna, is a miss still in her teens. She has a pleasing face and delivers her lines intelligently, but without displaying any marked histrionic ability. Her form is as yet apparently immature. Harry Allen was admirably made-up as Zerlina, and acted that character in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. The impersonation of female burlesque characters he is at present without a rival on our stage. He proved the chief attraction of the piece. On the opening night, as the performers who were known stepped upon the scene, they were warmly welcomed, and the strangers soon gained the favor of the audience. Herr Bernhard conducted the orchestra in the absence of David Braham, who is with another portion of Mr. Josh Hart's company. The new features announced for this week are Hart, Coolbrugen and Hart, Budworth, McKee and Rogers, and Herr Karl Lind, "The Stockholm Wonder." who will make his first appearance in America. He is under engagement to the Kiraly Brothers.

THE SUMMER SEASON at Tony Pastor's closed with the week ending Aug. 16. A complete change in the performance was made on the 11th, when the entertainments opened with a female minstrel scene, with Fred Emerson as bones, Morrisey Little tamborine, and S. Holdsworth interlocutor. Miss Fanny Morosino sang with pleasing effect "Gerry, my Darling." Fred Emerson a comic song; Little Alice Bennett won a triple encore for her excellent vocalization of "Close the Shutters, Willie's Dead;" S. Holdsworth's fine tenor voice was heard to advantage in "Don't Forget to Write," and Morrisey Little created considerable laughter by his humorously singing "The Mudjule Clerk." The pantomime of "Mother Goose," by the same troupe that performed during the previous week, filled out the programme. An olio was introduced, during which Miss Fanny Morosino sang a comic song; the Lester Brothers gave performances upon the horizontal bar; Miss Alice Bennett sang sentimental ballads; A. W. Maflin performed his spade dance; S. Holdsworth sang a ballad, and Morrisey and Emerson performed songs-and-dances. The ladies' benefit on Thursday evening, Aug. 14, in the minstrel scene received a joint benefit on Thursday evening, when the attendance was excellent, and it was good during the week. The house will probably remain closed until Tony Pastor opens his regular Fall and Winter season.

MR. AND MRS. W. J. FLORENCE arrived by the Scotia on Aug. 13. Among the novelties secured by Mr. Florence is G. Ralph Walker's drama of "Coming Home, or Sithors to Grind."

T. W. DAVEY, manager for Ben De Bar at Memphis, Tenn., left for this city on Aug. 14.

J. M. NIXON returned from Europe by the City of London on Aug. 12.

A NEW OPTICAL ILLUSION.—On Wednesday evening last, in company with a number of managers and prominent professional gentlemen, we visited the studio of Prof. Tobin's new optical illusion. At the farther end of a parlor, some few feet from the wall, was placed a screen some four or five feet in height, and directly in front of this, at an apparent distance of two feet, stood an artist's easel. A chandelier above and to the right of the easel, and a row of jets of gas with powerful reflecting mirrors placed on the left and right, illuminated the scene. A prepared plain canvas was placed upon the easel, and Mr. Tobin, standing before it and holding in his left hand the artist's palette, concealed the canvas from view; and after the lapse of a few seconds he stepped aside and revealed a caricature of a human being nearly completed. A few more strokes of the pencil and it was finished. Again standing before the picture, one or two strokes of the pencil were made, and we saw that the expression of the countenance was changed. After several metamorphoses of this kind had been indulged in, the face was commanded to move of itself, which it did—opening and shutting its eyes and mouth, and indulging in facial contortions. The face of a human being, by some ingenious device, it was evident, had been reflected upon the canvas, and could be made apparently to speak, sing, etc. As the illusion is both novel and entertaining, it should achieve success.

MISS LYDIA THOMPSON and the new members of her burlesque company, also Samuel Colville, businessmanager, arrived by the steamship City of London, on Aug. 12. Alexander Henderson did not accompany them.

CARLOTTA LECLERCQ returned from Europe by the steamship Idaho on Aug. 12.

GEORGE FAWCETT ROWE arrived by the City of London on Aug. 12.

Her opera-bouffe company arrived on Aug. 12, by the steamship Pereire from France.

DAN LESSON, after an absence of some years, passed in the practice of his profession in England, the Misses Louise Henderson, Jeffreys Lewis and Ada Crawford, all of whom are engaged for the coming season at the new Lyceum Theatre, arrived on Aug. 12, by the steamship Greece.

W. H. BRINKWORTH will be the leader of the orchestra at Wood's Museum during the coming season, and Miss Henrietta Grainger will be a member of the stock company, in addition to those whose names were published in our past issue.

M. COLLODION, the impromptu French caricaturist, is under special engagement to Mr. Samuel Colville, and is not a member of the Lydia Thompson Troupe, although he will perform with that company during a portion of their coming engagement at the Olympic Theatre, commencing Aug. 25, when they will produce a new burlesque by George Fawcett Rowe, entitled "Mephisto and the Four Sensations."

GEORGE LINGARD arrived from Glasgow, Scotland, on Aug. 13, by the steamship Trinacria.

JOHN H. MEECH, co-manager of the Academy of Music, Buffalo, N. Y., V. E. Beamer of Pittsburgh, Pa., Walter Keeble, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Albany, N. Y., Tony Denier the pantomimist, and J. S. Langrishe of Langrish & Carle's dramatic company, have again arrived in the city, and are at the Sinclair House.

E. D. DAVIES, wife and daughter, arrived on Aug. 17 from England, by steamship Egypt.

OLIVER DOUD BYRON is to commence an engagement at Wood's Museum on Sept. 15, acting in "Ben McCullough."

MARK SMITH and T. C. King arrived by the Egypt on Aug. 17.

MISS MARY GORENFLO has been engaged for the season at the Theatre Comique.

J. K. EMMET, w

MISS ANNIE FIRMIN and John Jack, in the latter's dramatic picture in four acts of Wilkie Collins' novel of "The New Magdalen," have just concluded a brilliant engagement at the Globe Theatre, Chicago, where they played nightly to a large attendance. We excerpt the following from the Chicago papers:

In Miss Firmin the very difficult role of Mercy Merrick found an able exponent. Miss Firmin is a blonde, elegant in person and carriage, a fine reader, and an accomplished actress. Her portraiture of the New Magdalen was a pleasing performance throughout, while at times she evinced a power and pathos that evoked hearty applause from a discriminating audience. The play is intensely dramatic throughout, and the entire entertainment is of an enjoyable character.—Evening Journal.

It is a well-constructed play, and has situations cleverly worked up and introduced. Miss Annie Firmin as Mercy Merrick, the reformed outcast, evinced good power and conscientious study of the part. Mr. John Jack, as Julian Grey, threw much force into the part.—Mail.

As Mercy Merrick, the child of the street, the daughter of the Refuge, and the woman of English aristocracy, Miss Firmin shows to best advantage. Her impersonation is generally excellent, and her style was never before shown to so much advantage. The character has a wealth of meaning, and she seems to have studied it conscientiously. In temptation, in deception and in penitence she shows a naturalness, an aptitude and an emotional power that have never been encountered in her before.—Inter-Ocean.

The announcement that the brilliant young actress Miss Annie Firmin would appear in her famous role, The New Magdalen, had much to do with the encouraging attendance. Miss Firmin has grasped the salient points of the role with remarkable fidelity. Her personal beauty did much to relieve it of the otherwise disagreeable effects of the Magdalen's character, although the author has done his best to make the role highly moral, after the late-repentance fashion. Mr. John Jack, as Julian Gray the clergyman, was impressive.—Post.

They commence an engagement at the Academy of Music, Buffalo, N. Y., on Aug. 25, opening in "The New Magdalen."

HENRY A. TONS, the bogus agent, is still roaming the Western country preying upon hall proprietors, hotel-keepers, newspapers and livery-stable men. We clip the following from The Portage County Democrat of Ravenna, O., of Aug. 13:

A BOGUS AGENT.—On Thursday afternoon last a young man walked into the counting-room of The Democrat and handed the business-manager an elegant and fashionably printed card, which read: "Ned Miaceo, Gen. Con. Agent, Jennie Hight Comedy Company." Mr. Miaceo proceeded to announce that he had engaged Reeds' Opera-house for the company named on his card for the evenings of Aug. 25 and 26, and ordered "dates," to be used in connection with a bundle of posters he had with him, which bore the imprint of an Akron job office. While the young man was transacting this business an employe of The Democrat recognized him as a person who worked temporarily in The Democrat office in 1871 under the name of Harry A. Tons. Next Mr. "Miaceo" appeared at the Etna House and engaged apartments for two days. After tea, Thursday, he procured a horse and buggy from the Etna livery and took a leisurely and refreshing drive about the city. Friday morning he was early at The Democrat office, and meeting his former employer, greeted him with cordial recognition. The young man not being recognized in turn made an embarrassed and faltering reply when asked his name, which he finally and hesitatingly stated to be "Harry A. Tons." Immediately after this singular episode attention was called to the following paragraph in THE NEW YORK CLIPPER of Aug. 9th. Here follows the paragraph, published in that issue.

[EDS. CLIP.] Mr. "Miaceo" seemed impressed that something had been discovered, as he left instanter for the depot of the A. & G. W. R. R. On reaching there he had the forethought to write a note to the Etna House requesting that a dozen "Longfellow" cigars (two for 25 cents) be sent him by the errand boy he had employed. The Clipper paragraph had by this time been read at the Etna House, and the order for the luxurious cigars was not filled. It is hardly necessary to say that nothing more has been seen of Mr. Tons—"Miaceo"—and his hotel bill he still unliquidated; and this seems to be the extent of the swindle at Ravenna.

MINNIE JACKSON has been engaged for the Grand Central Theatre, Philadelphia, for leading and burlesque business.

MLLE. CERITO was the only fresh arrival at the Vaudeville Theatre, Louisville, Ky., on Aug. 11. Her transformation dancing elicited the highest encominums from the audiences. Her numerous changes are rapid and wonderful, and her selection of dances is good. The following are announced to appear on the 18th: Cincinnatus, Marsh Adams, Frank Lavarnie and sister and Castelotti. The departures on the 16th were Billy Barry and Fanny Fordham, for Philadelphia; Kate Leslie, Nashville; Susie Starr and Ed. Gorman, Pittsburgh. Mr. V. M. Jones is now associated with Mr. Riley in the management. So writes our correspondent.

CHARLEY SHAY'S COLOSSAL TRAVELING COMPANY is to commence a traveling season at Stamford, Ct., Sept. 1. The company is as follows: Patti Rosa, serio-comic vocalist and dancer; Kitty Henderson, clog dancer; Viola Morris, "artistic change" performer; Ernestine May, balladist; the Rogers Family—Nat, Antonio and Willie—in classic groupings; Charles Munroe, Ethiopian delineator; George F. Moore, Dutch, Irish and Ethiopian comedian; Boyd and Scott, song-and-dance performers; the Nathenale Brothers—John and Henry—gymnasts; Kelly and Sutton, acrobatic performers on the cornet and violin; Charley Shay, general performer; Charles Brighton, Henry Harrison, Fred Greissinger, George Brainard, Wilder Merriam, Fred Willock, Wm. Powell, Albert Gaston, George Fyke, Alfred Jones, John Messinger, Charles Williams, William Crone and James Owens will be the two bands of music—John Kelley's Grenadier Brass Band, consisting of fourteen musicians in Grenadier uniform, and Prof. George Sutton's Opera String Band. J. H. Laine is the advance agent.

THE DOMINION THEATRE, Montreal, Canada, under the management of M. J. McFarland, has opened under very favorable auspices. Our correspondent, writing on Aug. 14, says: "Miss Jennie Kimball, Miss Kitty Henderson, Geo. F. Moore and the Caron Family are re-engaged. The new appearances for the 18th will be Miss Lotie Scott, vocalist and actress; the Leopar Brothers, acrobats; Prof. Bindelect, and an opera-bouffe troupe. The orchestra is particularly good and composed of nine members, under the leadership of Mr. Adolph Von Duren. Messrs. W. R. Gray and T. E. Niebuhr, the former as stage-manager and the latter as treasurer, fulfil their duties satisfactorily."

PETER CANNON, Irish comic vocalist, at present performing at the Metropolitan Theatre, Washington, D. C., can be addressed as per advertisement.

SAM BELMER, comic vocalist and general performer, will arrive from England about the end of November, and all letters for him can be addressed to H. Marten, as per card elsewhere.

AMERICUS, the child violinist and leader of orchestra, who is at present performing at the Opera-house, Detroit, Mich., can be secured for vacant dates through his agent, J. G. Speaight.

W. S. HIGGINS is to commence an engagement at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., on Aug. 25, when he will act in his own drama, "Out of the Fire."

J. HANNERTY, who advertises, has for disposal two Dutch dialect songs-and-dances and two Ethiopian acts.

WILLIAM PASTOR, comic vocalist, is engaged to travel with the Lulu Combination.

PITTSBURGH, PA., variety news is reported as follows by our correspondent, under date of Aug. 15: "Harry Kernell, a versatile Ethiopian comedian, appeared at the Varieties Theatre on Aug. 11. His acts are recorded deserved applause. An almost entire change of programme is given this week, commencing with the sketch of 'The Dead Alive,' by Herman, Boyd and Williams; Irish songs by Cannon, fancy dances by Sallie St. Clair, medley dance by Emma Ellinger, 'He's Got to Come' by Howard and Scott; songs, dances, etc., by Harry Kernell; gymnastic and acrobatic performances by Montague, 'Beautiful Snow' by Miss Wren and Jas. Collins, dancing-globe performances by Mlle. Geretta, 'The Rival Lovers' by Boyd and Scott, 'The Wrong Man' by Kernell. Herman and Williams, clog dances by Miss Rosa, and comic metamorphoses by Mlle. Geretta and Ed. Montague, the entertainments concluding with Charles Howard's Ethiopian drama of Jasper the Faithful,' with Howard in the title role. Attendance liberal. The departures after the 16th will be Peter Cannon, James Collins and Martha Wren, Boyd and Scott, Patty Rosa, Sallie St. Clair, Ed Montague and Mlle. Geretta. The new people on the 18th will be McVay and Gulick, Kate Montrose, Morrisey and Emerson, Dick Parker, and Smith and Waldron. . . . 'Grand Army' American Theatre is being renovated and refitted, and will open for next season. In the list of artists appearing on opening night, as published in last week's CLIPPER, the name of E. D. Gooding should have been inserted. . . . . Mrs. Hart, wife of Mr. John Hart, Ethiopian comedian, was buried in Pittsburgh on the 10th inst. Her remains were brought from New York City, at which place she had died a few days previous to her interment here. Mr. Hart is spending a few days in Washington County, Pa., with the 'old folks.' He will shortly return to New York."

ALICE NAPIER, who can be addressed care of this office, wants a partner for double-trapeze business.

HARRY RICHARDS, burlesque prima donna and wench dancer, advertises for engagements.

J. A. WHETTONY and LORA LYNN, double-trapeze artists and aerial gymnasts, can be addressed care of their compositions, and any attempt to perform them without the consent of the authors being first obtained will be dealt with according to law.

LEW HALLETT and Mrs. Altie Hallett are to commence an engagement on Sept. 8 at the Theatre Comique, Bloomington, Ill.

WATTY MORGAN, comedian and vocalist, advertises for engagements.

BUCHANON'S GRAND CENTRAL THEATRE, Memphis, Tenn., will open for the season on September 13. Artists are advertised for.

ARTISTS desiring engagements at Wild's Opera-house, Little Rock, Ark.; White's Opera-house, Memphis, Tenn.; or the Academy of Music, Nashville, are referred to an advertisement in another column.

AT HARRY ENOCH'S VARIETIES, Philadelphia, the usual lengthy and attractive programme was presented last week to very fair audiences. There were no new faces. The capital serio-comic vocalism of Miss Carrie Martin was a fresh and noticeable feature. Miss Lizzie Lagrange was unable to appear last week by reason of sickness. Tony McCrystal's complimentary benefit on the 14th inst. was well attended, Tommy Haywood, Alice Gilmore and Charles Devere being among the volunteers. Miss Amanda Lee concluded her engagement here on the 16th, Geo. B. Radcliffe and Billy Carroll also closing on the same date. Boyd and Scott, song-and-dance men, and Miss Kitty Smith, dancense, open on the 18th. The regular Fall and Winter season at this establishment will be inaugarated on the 25th inst. with a strong company under the stage-management, as heretofore, of Lew Frazer, and including the following: Mme. Lopez and five children, Jacob and Cecelia Berry in their version of "Rip Van Winkle," Emma Marsh, Fanny Davenport, Maggie Pease, Jule Keen, Billy Wright, Dan Howard and Charley Monroe. The orchestra will be augmented, and new scenery and a handsome drop-curtain provided.

THE GRAND CENTRAL VARIETIES THEATRE, Philadelphia, will be reopened on the 25th inst., under the management of J. M. Mortimer. During the Summer recess this theatre has been fitted up in a most tasteful manner, the interior being thoroughly cleaned and redecorated, the prevailing colors being gray and light green. New flooring has been laid, and the aisles, lobbies and saloons have been carpeted with Brussels carpet. The company engaged for the opening includes Miss Lulu Delmay, Minnie Jackson, Nellie Germon and Lizzie Coote, vocalists; Sam Senyeah and Mlle. Leola, in a new gymnastic feat; Walters and Morton, song-and-dance men; Martha Wren and James Collins, in their character sketches; Billy Barry, Ethiopian comedian; H. G. Richmond, serio-comic vocalist; Harry Guion, leading actor; and a ballet corps under the direction of Mons. Zavistowski, headed by Mlles. De Rosa and Emma, and supported by the Harrison Sisters, Wesner Sisters, Susie Summerfield, Fanny Fordham, Amy Rowland, Millie Killmeyer, Minnie Weigle and corypheus. The orchestra will be under the direction of Prof. Blumenschein. Wm. B. Cavanagh, who was announced as the stage-manager, will not fill that position, which is still vacant.

MORTIMER'S VARIETIES, Philadelphia, will be reopened for the regular Fall and Winter season on the 30th inst. It is now undergoing alterations.

JIMMY O'NEIL, Ida Fields, Jimmy Neery, Fred. Howard and Capola and Murtz were performing at Smith's Island, opposite Philadelphia, during the week ending Aug. 16, the serio-comic vocalism of Fred. Howard being the most noticeable feature.

J. M. NIXON, during his recent visit to Europe, secured a number of novel attractions which will shortly arrive.

AT SHELBY'S COMIQUE, Buffalo, N. Y., on Aug. 11, a host of new people made their bow, including the Lopez Family (six in number), Hugh Fay, Billy Hart, also Peasley and Hughes. The auditorium was well filled nightly, while the correspondent on Aug. 16, further remarking: "The trapeze feats of Master George and Miss Kate Lopez were of a high order, while the classic groupings of the entire family were beautiful in regard to pose and arrangement. Fay and Hart took well in their specialties, and Peasley and Hughes' act of musical harry was neatly rendered. A very meritorious nautical drama, 'America's Daughters,' by Stage-manager Thompson, closed the bill, and was creditably performed by the company. The Misses Kitty Rowell and Belle Gordon closed on the 16th, and the arrivals on the 18th will be the Misses Amanda Lee and Kitty Whitland. . . .The performances at Canterbury Hall came to an abrupt termination on the 12th, for reasons unknown to your correspondent."

MANAGER ENGEL will reopen Mozart Hall, Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4, with a variety company.

BUSINESS was good at the Opera house, Baltimore, Md., the past week, notwithstanding the non-appearance of new people, wrote our correspondent on Aug. 16, further stating: "This establishment closed for repairs on the evening of Aug. 16, to be reopened with a strengthened company and new attractions on the 25th. . . . .The fresh arrivals on the 11th at Sadler's Odeon Varieties were Clara Bell, a dashing serio-comic vocalist, of the genus blonde, and Sam Orme, an excellent banjoist and clever colored comedian. Attendance, large. No immediate changes."

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Toledo, O., the new faces the past week were Guy Linton, Lucy Adams, Green and Sadler, and the Lillian Sisters. Geo. H. Berkley, who was announced for the 11th, failed to appear, wrote our correspondent August 16, adding: "Green and Sadler are good song-and-dance artists, and gave fair satisfaction. Guy Linton and Lucy Adams were well received. The Lillian Sisters have good material, but unless they first visited us, they are very fair dressers. Ella La Rue closed on the 16th; also Florentine and daughter, who go to Cleveland. Joe Childs, Eliza Berry and Lizzie Temple open on the 18th."

ONE OF THE BEST BILLS we have ever seen at the Theatre Comique, Cleveland, O., was that presented the first three nights of the past week, wrote our correspondent on Aug. 15, by way of preliminary. "The new people appearing on the 11th were May Hemmings, Mlle. Rosa, Charley Benedict, The O'Donohue, Billy Ray and son, and Annie Clare. The first part was quite good. In the olio May Hemmings did a very neat dance, followed by Frank Bell's extremely laughable 'Address to the Senate.' Mlle. Rosa's dance was fine, and Charley Benedict's song-and-dance very good. The O'Donohue's Irish business, both singing and dancing, was among the best we have ever seen; Annie Claire danced a good jig, and her act of 'The Old Man's Drunk Again,' by Billy Ray and son, was exceedingly well rendered, and nightly called for repetition. Master Willie Ray does a neat and artistic song-and-dance later in the evening. 'Opera Buffers,' by Charley Benedict, Will C. Burton, B. C. Hart and May Hemmings, lasts some forty minutes, and kept the audience in a perfect roar of laughter from beginning to end. Minnie Rainforth appears in some original songs, which merit commendation. Business remains good. The only departures on the 16th will be Mlle. Leoline, who goes to Bay City, Mich., and Miss Nellie Howard, the jig-dancer, who, after a successful engagement of fifteen weeks at the above house, will rusticate for a while at Put-in-Bay Island, Lake Erie."

THE NEW ARRIVALS at the Comique, Rochester, N. Y., the past week were the Monzert Sisters, who are quite clever in songs, dances, etc.; the Richardson Brothers, excellent Ethiopian delineators; Miss Lillie Linden, who possesses a very sweet voice; and Miss Dolly May, one of the best serio-comic singers we have had this season. The old favorites—Geo. Garland, Dutch comedian; Collom and White, song-and-dance performers; Charlie Edwards, Price White and Harry Gardner—continue to good houses. New faces are underlined. . . .Harry Butler, negro comedian, and Little Nellie the California Gem, are in town, rusticating. So reported our correspondent on Aug. 17.

AT THE WINTER GARDEN, Chicago, Ill., business continues good, the bill of fare being full up to the standard, wrote our correspondent on August 14, with this addition: "The only new face this week is that of Charles Fox, whose Dutch songs-and-dances are rendered in an exquisite manner, his dialect being good, his dancing artistic, and his singing far better than the average. The first part is, as usual, an attractive feature. The comic songs and witty sayings of Johnny Shields and Jimmie Emerson smack of originality, and produce considerable mirth. Their Ethiopian acts in the olio are cleverly rendered and hugely enjoyed by the audience. Clara Sidell, though young in the business, is remarkably clever in Hale character songs. She dresses in fine taste, and possesses a rich voice, which she uses to good advantage. Among the most prominent features is Little Rosa Howland in songs-and-dances. She is but a child, having been on the stage only five months, yet even now she has but few equals in her line of business, and seems to improve with every performance. Her sister Nellie appears every evening in a choice selection of ballads, rendered in a satisfactory manner. The ballads sung by Mattie Bianca, though mostly ancient, are well received. The old favorite, Eunice Dunlap, is a fixture in this place, her dancing being as attractive as ever. The Jerome Sisters appear in comic duets, ballads and serio-comic songs, and come in for their share of applause. Minnie Baker, Mike Kanane, Dollie Emerson and Jas. Griffin severally contribute their share toward making the performances pleasing. Mike Kanane and Clara Sidell close on the 16th, destination not known; and Kelly and Roach, double song-and-dance artists, are announced for the 18th. . . . . Millie Lizetta, vocalist, lately connected with Ryan's Varieties, has brought suit against that gentleman to recover the sum of sixteen dollars for services rendered at his place. Several others are said to be watching the proceedings; and if Millie is successful, they will pounce upon him."

AT SMITH'S OPERA-HOUSE, East Saginaw, Mich., business is excellent, reports our coresponden. Miss Blanche Bursha, vocalist, commenced on Aug. 4. Miss Bursha, Dewey left on that day for New York. Sallie St. Clair is billed for the 18th.

AT TOOKER'S VARIETIES, Norfolk, Va, George White and Miss Laura Webb reappeared on Aug. 11. Jimmy Dalton closed on the 16th. There are no fresh appearances announced.

AT RASTATTER'S CONCERT HALL, Elmira, N. Y., H. J. Campbell, Mlle. Lucille, Billy Baker, and Tilly Russell were to have appeared on Aug. 11, but the mayor of the city closed the hall ere the performance commenced. Tommy Dayton and Annie Ratelle, who had been previously performing there, left for Pittsburgh, Pa., where they are to open Aug. 18.

THE MAIN-STREET OPERA-HOUSE, Dayton, O., closed for the season Aug. 16. It will be reopened about the middle of September, with John Retty & Co., proprietors, and Leon Whettony, stage-manager.

A COMBINATION styled The Black Raven Varieties, with the World's Comic Opera and White Swan Sensation Troupe, will travel through the States this Fall, commencing the season on Oct. 20. F. M. Clement, the manager, advertises for a leader of orchestra and five lady vocalists and dancers.

LADY VOCALISTS, song-and-dance men and a Dutch comedian are wanted by Wm. Forepaugh, who can be addressed care of this office.

BIRCH AND ROWLING, double song-and-dance men, who can be addressed care of this office, desire engagements for the Fall and Winter season.

MCCLELLAN'S DANCE AGGREGATION performed at Big Flats, N. Y., Aug. 12, Horse Heads 13, Chemung 14, Wellsburg 15, Waverly 16, and is billed at Towanda, Pa., 18.

DICK SANDS and Jerry Cohan had a trial of their skill in dancing for $100 a side at Pete Lee's Opera-house, St. John, N. B., on Aug. 7, the occasion of a benefit to Sam Collins. It resulted in a draw, Sands winning the hornpipe and Cohan the Irish jig.

SAM DEVERE took his farewell benefit at Lee's Opera-house, St. John, N. B., Aug. 9, when he offered a silver goblet for the best original conundrum.

PATTY ROSA, serio-comic vocalist and clog dancer, and Boyd and Scott, song-and-dance and character artists, at present performing at Enoch's Varieties, Philadelphia, Pa., will travel with Charley Shay's troupe next season, and can be addressed care of this office.

THE BUTLER-CHESIDE PANTOMIME TROUPE, which performed during the past week at Tony Pastor's, New York, will constitute the attraction at Hooley's Opera-house, Brooklyn, L. I., this week. A variety olio and the sketch of "The Modocs" will also be given.

MISS GERTIE GRANVILLE, vocalist, who has been performing for some weeks past at the Academy of Music, Toronto, Ont. on the occasion of her last appearance, on Aug. 1, was presented by a number of her friends, through Mr. Harry Wood, stage-manager, with a valuable diamond ring, also one of amethyst with the letter "G" set in diamonds. Their value is said to be $200. For that occasion she likewise received a complimentary benefit, concerning which The Leader of Aug. 2 says:

She is possessed of a voice such as is very seldom heard upon the stage, as well as great talent for acting, and at each appearance she has met with a most decided success, and from her general good nature and affability was well deserving of the support she received last night.

ZEGRINO & MOULTON, gymnasts, can be engaged to produce their copyrighted sensational novelty, "The Salamander Leap." Address as per card elsewhere.

WHILE GUS WILLIAMS, the Dutch comedian and vocalist of Tony Pastor's Combination, was performing at the Opera-house, Springfield, Mass., during the past week, an unknown thief entered his dressing-room and stole two diamond shirt-studs, said to be valued at $150.

THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Detroit, Mich., inaugurated their new season at the Opera-house on Aug. 11 to a well-filled house, since which time they have appeared at the Comique. Our correspondent, writing on Aug. 15, says: "Geo. Wilson (his third season) was received warmly, having to respond to encores until he was hoarse. Fanny Deane, vocalist, has a strong, uncultivated voice. Clark Gibbs gave an old-man act with success, his make-up being especially noticeable. Tillie Antonio was well received in her dances, as was Hannah Birch in her Irish reel. A bone solo by Johnny Bartley was unique and good. Sophie Elma, another vocalist, has a musical voice, uses it well, but her style and wardrobe is rather too ancient for Detroit. Charles Gleason has been quite sick, and was only able to appear in the Ethiopian scenes. Charlie has made a reputation here while with traveling parties. The star of the evening, however, was 'America,' the child violinist, who has taken the people by storm. The Adams Brothers, Dutchists, were good in everything, and proved quite an acquisition to the company. Maggie Nichols returns to us in her slack-wire and plate-spinning acts, improved, if possible. The performance closed with 'The Modoc Chiefs.' Nicolo Norton, the veteran, is stage-manager. No closures nor arrivals this week."

CINCINNATI, O., VARIETY NEWS, up to Aug. 16, is furnished by our correspondent as follows: "The Alhambra, under the management of Harry C. Melville, continues to do a good business. The new people are Minnie Warner, vocalist; Kate Hunter, dancer and statue artist; George Davenport, song-and-dance, and George Morton, banjoist and comedian. The closures embraced Charley Armstrong, gone to Dayton; Mons. Duverney, Mlle. Florintaine, Cal. Mandeville, Abb Lee, Prof. La Du Port and Magic Maguire, Harry C. Melville, M. A. Griffin, Jimmy Mills, Tommy King and Mlle. Miranda constitute the remainder of the company. Billy Unsworth, song-and-dance, is underlined for Aug. 18. At the Race-street Varieties there are no changes to report. George Davenport, who has this week been playing both here and at the Alhambra, closes to-night, to join Arlington's Minstrels, and will probably be replaced by Johnny Weaver. Another report is that Davenport joins a traveling dramatic company, as joint star with Caroline Hayes."

PROF. ST. ELMO, who, with his performing dog, is engaged at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., can be addressed as per advertisement.

PATTERSON'S MINSTRELSY are now playing at the Metropolitan Theatre, St. Joseph, Mo. See advertisement.

ARTHUR WILLIAMS, comedian, vocalist and author, whose address is care of this office, is at liberty to engage from Sept. 1 until Nov. 22.

THE ENTERPRISE CIRCUS, which is the present terminus of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, is reported as doing a lively business.

THE LULU COMBINATION will start on its first annual tour on Sept. 8, and will inaugurate the regular Fall and Winter season at the Academy of Music, New Orleans, La. The company is as follows: Lulu and Ada, gymnastic and aerial gymnasts; Billy Pastor, comic vocalist; Shed and John Le Claire in their specialties; J. F. Raymond, pantomimist; Geo. A. Beane, comedian and pantomimist; W. Griffin, silver and cornet performer; Miss Fannie Montague, actress, and Miss Fanny Beane, soubrette, burlesque actress and dancer. E. W. Woodgate is the business manager. The performances will consist of an original musical farce, a variety olio and a trick pantomime. The attention of managers and hall-owners throughout the country is called to their card in another column.

NEGRO MINSTRELSY.

DUPREZ AND BENEDICT'S MINSTRELS played a week's engagement at the Arch-street Theatre, Philadelphia, opening on the 11th inst., and attracting fair audiences, considering the very rainy weather. The eccentricities of Lew Benedict and George H. Edwards, the balladism of Lillian Sisters, the songs and dances of J. Fox and W. Ward, and the serio-comic songs of Frank Kent and Ernest Linden, were features eliciting the most approbation, and apparently affording much satisfaction to the audiences.

THE FOURTH SEASON of Simmons & Slocum's Minstrels at the Arch-street Opera-house, Philadelphia, will be inaugurated on the 25th inst., with the following company: Lew Simmons, E. N. Slocum, Luke Schoolcraft, Matt Wheeler, Hurley and Marr, W. Henry Rice, Justin Robinson, the Barlow Brothers, Wm. Hamilton, J. J. Kelly, Fred. Walz, John Crosher, Charles Stevens, C. F. Shattuck, Jasper H. Ross, Eddie Fox, Wm. Surface, Frank L. Hobbs, H. Stout, J. H. Beck and J. S. Paul. The Opera-house has been newly frescoed, painted and redecorated, the seats have been reupholstered, and the aisles and lobbies carpeted. A handsome scene, representing a Moorish palace, has been painted for the first part.

THE ELEVENTH-STREET OPERA-HOUSE, Philadelphia, will be opened for the season on the 25th inst. with a new company, under the management of Carncross & Dixey, whose name they will bear. The exterior of this establishment has been painted to imitate white marble, and the interior has been thoroughly renovated, and new scenery painted.

CALLENDER'S GEORGIA MINSTRELS appeared at Albany, N. Y., on Aug. 14, to a good house, wrote our correspondent on the 16th, adding: "They presented a novel and funny programme. Their first part was very good, the plantation songs of Bob Height, Billy Kersands, Jerry Haverly, Mollville, M. A. Griffin, covered, as was a ballad by Lew Pierson. In the second part Height and Kersands appeared to better advantage than the others. The former is a comedian of merit, and compares favorably with a good many of his high-toned white brethren. On the whole they are a pretty fair troupe, and have proved quite their last appearance here. They went from here to Pittsfield, Mass., 15, Springfield 16, Hartford, Ct., 18, New Haven 19, and Bridgeport 21. At the latter place they disband, but will take the road again in ten days."

MCGUIRE'S CALIFORNIA MINSTRELS, at the Alhambra Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., continue to do an excellent business with a large and talented company. The programme presented during the week introduced Billy Sweatnam, Billy Manning, Kelly and Leon, Bob Hart, Welch and Rice, Master Barney, Little Mac, Thos. Donavan, Jas. Mahoney, etc. The week was relieved by the benefits to Vivian on Aug 5, and to Bob Hart and Master Barney on the 8th, which were attended by crowds. So reports our correspondent, who wrote on Aug. 9.

CHARLES HEYWOOD, soprano and prima-donna burlesque, left Cal Wagner's Minstrels at Columbus, Ohio, and will return to New York City for a vacation.

DUPREZ & BENEDICT'S MINSTRELS are to perform two weeks at St. Louis, Mo., commencing Aug. 25.

THE SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS, under the management of Birch, Hambold and C. Backus, have secured the use of Hooley's Opera-house, Brooklyn, L. I., for the coming season, and on Sept. 1 will commence a series of performances with a talented company. The great popularity of the managers combined with their excellent professional abilities, should enable them to carry through a season successfully in our city.

THE NEW ORLEANS MINSTRELS performed at Biddeford, Me., Aug. 13, 14, Portsmouth, N. H., 15, 16, and are to show at South Berwick 18, Salmon Falls 19, Great Falls 20, 21. Dover 22, 23, Newmarket 25.

HARRY ROBINSON'S MINSTRELS are to perform at Newark, N. J., Aug. 22, Trenton 25, Easton, Pa., 26, Manch Chunk 27, Summit Hill 28, Pottsville 29, St. Clair 30, Tamaqua Sept 1.

CAL WAGNER'S MINSTRELS performed at Dayton, O., August 15, to a very fine house, and gave a first-class entertainment. The singing of "We Sat by the River," as rendered by J. Rapier, was excellent; as was also a quartet solo by Charles Heywood, Canfield and Booker, in their eccentric songs-and-dances, received several encores. Sam Price and Happy Cal occupied the ends, indulging in new and novel witticisms, and creating mirth by their several impersonations. So reported our correspondent.

MYERS' OPERA-HOUSE, Chicago, Ill., will be opened on August 25 by Haverly, Cotton & Kemble's Minstrels, for the regular season.

BUCKLEY'S SERENADERS AND BURLESQUE OPERA TROUPE, which will shortly start on a tour of the country, will have a double quartet of male and female voices, a brass band of thirteen solo performers, and a double orchestra of talented musicians, will produce at each entertainment a burlesque opera with all the music of the original. The following is a list of the company: Eva Brent, Minnie Loder, G. Swaine Buckley, Jake Budd, J. H. Cummings, George Frothingham, John Turner, Vernon Sidney, George Bowyer, Frank Sawin, George G. Fawsley, Henry Spaulding, David Henness, James S. Burke, Charles Callan, Sig. Carlos Espinosa, Benjamin Bowron, W. F. Broadley, George F. Clarendon, F. T. Adams, George F. Henning, Joseph T. Hill, James Woodruff, and W. T. Boyd. G. Swaine Buckley will be the manager; J. O. Barnard, treasurer; Charles B. Griste, general agent, and Thomas Mack, advertiser.

DUPREZ & BENEDICT'S MINSTRELS are billed for one week at Wood's Theatre, Cincinnati, O., commencing Aug. 18.

A BARITONE VOCALIST is wanted for the San Francisco Minstrels. See advertisement.

CIRCUSES.

To the Memory of James Abdell.

(Attached to "Old" John Robinson's Circus.)

WHOSE DEATH WAS ANNOUNCED IN LAST WEEK'S CLIPPER.

BY BILLY DEVERE.

Hush the clang of the cymbal, and muffle the drum;
Let nothing be heard but the welcoming hum
Of the sweet angel-chorus that comes from above
To guide one more soul to the mansions of love.
Call riders, musicians, attendants and all,
That each one may trace upon memory's wall
The face of a comrade, "now weary of breath,"
Who rides his last act in the presence of death.
Let sweet Sympathy's tears bedew the bronze cheek,
While hearts that ne'er quailed now grow weary and weak
At the sound of the trumpet now ushering in
A soul to the throne of its Maker and King.
Then ring down the curtain and offer above
A sweet, holy prayer for the comrade we love,
Whose the welcoming encore now shall call more
From the silvery strand of a Heavenly shore.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 7, 1873.

BARNUM AT HOME.—The name of Barnum is known all over the world, and everything concerning the great showman is read with the keenest relish and interest. Our contributor Arthur W. French of Bridgeport, Ct., gives the following notice of the country seat of P. T. Barnum, and of the curiosity-hunter's wonderful horse: "In the city of Bridgeport, Ct., some fifteen minutes' ride from the business part of the town, overlooking the waters of Long Island Sound, lies Seaside Park, one of the finest public resorts, as far as natural beauty goes, to be seen in this country. On a slight eminence overlooking this beautiful place stands Waldmere (Honor by the Sea), the country seat and permanent residence of P. T. Barnum, the great showman. With lawns that stretch away a thousand feet from the front of the house, almost to the shores of the sea, it has a striking appearance, equaled by few if any private residences on this continent. Statuary in marble and bronze, vases of flowers, fountains and works of art, are scattered over the spacious ground in great profusion. The mansion proper is built in an irregular form, being a succession of windows, verandahs, etc., all of which are surmounted by a crest of iron in blue and gold. A tower some sixty feet in height rises from the main building, surmounted by a flagstaff from which floats a red flag with the monogram P. T. B. in white letters, signifying that the owner is 'at home.' Here through the long Summer days, while innocent rustics in some distant town are crowding into his World's Fair expecting to gaze upon the Great Showman, he rests at his ease, seemingly unmindful of the cares and troubles of a busy life. But lately he has given proof of his inordinate love of a practical joke, for which he has already become famous. Some days ago he wrote a notice to one of the local papers, saying that he had just procured a wonderful horse, whose size was such that if a man six feet high should stand erect upon a chair he would not be able to reach his back. He furthermore stated that all those interested could see the said horse in the meadow, just west of his house. For some days visitors at the park and others strolled around to the meadow, but found nothing but a small pony, some two feet high, nibbling the grass. Sunday afternoon the visitors were numbered by hundreds, but nobody saw the big horse. Finally, towards night, while a large crowd were gazing at the pony, perhaps expecting he would change into some mammoth thing before their eyes, who should be seen approaching but Barnum, when one man spoke up: 'I say, Mr. Barnum, where is that big horse that a man six feet high cannot reach his back?' The showman, with a merry twinkle in his eye, approached the pony and said: 'My dear sir, I defy any man six feet high to stand perfectly erect on a chair and reach down to this pony's back.' With a scream of laughter the crowd saw the joke and dispersed: but far into the night you might have seen people still coming, still going, all looking for that big horse of Barnum's, till at last, about all in the city have been sold, and found the joke on themselves. And so, we suppose, this will go down to posterity, perhaps be written in another book, as one of that 'Old Humbug's' peculiarities."

A CIRCUS traveling out West advertises "the only mermaid on exhibition in the world." She is announced to give performances every day, such as "eating, drinking, smoking, and sleeping beneath the water's surface." A correspondent tells us, however, that the whole thing is a fraud—that the beautiful lady who does the mermaid business is not a mere maid even, but a muscular canvasman made up to look something like a woman, with a blonde wig to help along the delusion, and sell the spectators. "Our Jim" says that this is rather a "sell" fish way of raising the wind.

BARNUM'S GREAT SHOW is billed to perform the present week at Chicago, Ill., Laporte, Ind., Aug. 25, Elkhart 26, Cold Water, Mich., 27, Albion 28, Toledo, O., 29, Jackson, Mich., 30.

MISS LIZZIE MARCELLUS, the last pupil of Dan Rice, was married recently at Dubuque, Ia., to Harry Cardoza, equestrian and stilt performer.

GRADY'S, Bartlett's and Lent's circuses are exhibiting in the State of Iowa.

LOVE AND WIFE, for many years connected with John Wilson's California Circus, are visiting their friends at Burr Oak, Mich.

CHARLES WEIGHTMAN, the "Man-fish," with Doll Hamlin as agent, is now en route for California. He is to perform at Omaha, Neb., for six nights, commencing Aug. 20; thence to Salt Lake City for six nights, which will be the only exhibition he will give until he reaches San Francis
